The World Goes 'Round.

A Real Flying Boat.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THOSE NOT young remember a tall comedian of the Lillian Russell era singing "The World Goes 'Round Just the Same, and We've Only Got Ourselves to Blame."

Lillian Russell and the tall comedian are gone, but the world still goes around, and we still have ourselves to blame, our hatreds, jealousies, timidities, selfishness. It is doubtless true that the Lord made us in his own image, the Bible says so, but we have changed.

IN INDIA, five bombs in working order are found in a first-class railroad carriage. Somebody wanted to kill the British viceroy.

We have had our own bombs in America lately, with post-office employes killed because somebody objects to Mussolini's government, 3,000 miles away.

ON LONG ISLAND, volunteer firemen are accused of arson, some confessing they started blazes for the "thrill" of fighting them. International blazes have been started in the past with the same motive.

EACH DAY, tucked away in its little news corner, you read of the latest suicide that "surprises friends and relatives." The story tells of a man, usually past middle age, who, after working hard and accumulating enough, has decided to get more by gambling.

Sometimes he telephones to his daughter what he intends to do, his wife being dead and his balance wheel gone. Then he blows out his brains, jumps out of a window, or otherwise carries out his plan.

Many men with courage to build up a fortune haven't the courage to endure losing it.

JAPAN WHOSE general, Honjo, has a face as powerful as Hindenburg's, goes marching ahead and takes the Chinese city of Shanhaikwan. It is opposite, and a little north of Port Arthur, on the Gulf of Chihli, exactly where the Great Wall runs down to the sea, and inside the wall. China will not like that, nor will Russia.

The day may come when all Western Europe will look upon Russia as the real "Great Wall" between Europe and Asia.

RUSSIAN HATRED of Asiatics and of slanting eyes is older than history.

The very financiers of Europe and America, that now pray for Russia's bankruptcy, may some day finance Russia's army, for their own protection.

THE MANY buildings in Rockefeller City, that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is erecting, with squares, towers, parks and trees on roofs, in the heart of New York, will include a "British Empire Building." Anxious not to compete with other buildings, hurt by the depression, which began after Rockefeller City was started, Mr. Rockefeller has sent agents abroad to create new non-competitive leases.

The British Building, at Fifth avenue and Fiftieth street, official headquarters for British financial and industrial concerns in America, will fly a British flag, carry the British coat of arms, under the management of Baron Southborough.

YOU KNOW that he is British when you read his full name, Sir Francis John Stephen Hopwood, P. C., G. C. B., G. C. M. G., G. C. V. O., K. C. S. I. The head of the whole shebang is not so rich in initials. His are only John D., S. O.

But the last two, meaning Standard Oil, are equal to many others.

A SCIENTIST of the Netherlands has come within a fraction of creating the "absolute zero" temperature. That was announced yesterday. Today you read that Holland is about to build the biggest flying boat that ever was, twice the size of Germany's DO-X.

The ship will have 10 motors, totaling 10,000 horsepower, each motor driving three propellers. The boat, weighing 100 tons, is expected to carry a 42-ton load, at 140 miles an hour. It would go from Amsterdam to New York, and back, comfortably over a weekend.

LLOYD GEORGE is back in England, after a health trip to the East Indies. His daughter calls his improvement "amazing."

Improvement in the health of British finance might be also amazing if the British knew enough to use the intellect of Lloyd George for their salvation.

He financed the great war for England, for France and other countries that England supplied with money, and supplied ammunition for the war, building factories miles long.

He then took charge of everything as Prime Minister, and, with Clemenceau, won the war.

Clemenceau is dead, after enduring from his nation such ingratitude as republics know how to manifest.

The British, almost a republic, while giving a good imitation of republican ingratitude, should let Lloyd George try to do for them what they have shown inability to do for themselves.

CROWDS LINE STREETS TO WELCOME 'HIKERS'

Eleven Victims of Pike Crash Taken to Hospital In Hagerstown; Rally Held

Father Cox will broadcast on Station WCAE at 6 o'clock this evening.

While Father James R. Cox's army of unemployed was returning to Pittsburgh today to receive the cheers of crowds, 14 of the marchers were injured when their truck overturned on the National Pike 17 miles west of Hagerstown, Md.

Crowds lining the downtown streets gave a glorious welcome to the priest who yesterday presented to President Hoover and Congress in Washington demands for a $5,000,000,000 federal job relief bond issue.

Almost 400 trucks and autos carried the tired but happy marchers through the Liberty Tubes and the downtown district to Father Cox's Old St. Patrick's Church at Seventeenth street and Liberty avenue. The remaining 600 cars later filtered into the city along various routes.

At the church many of the army of 15,000 attacked a vast supply of soup, sandwiches and coffee, then joined in a monster mass meeting in tribute to their priestly leader.

ATTEND MASS

After seeing that his followers had been fed, Father Cox said mass.

They knew nothing of the accident which left 14 of their ranks sprawled off the highway near Hagerstown. Three of the 14 were reported badly hurt. Eleven of them were treated in the Washington County Hospital at Hagerstown.

Father Cox gave the members of his army special dispensation, permitting them to eat meat sandwiches, telling them that after the rigors of the trip they needed all the nourishment they could get.

In Washington arrangements were being made to transport back to Pittsburgh the 400 men stranged there. eCongressman Clyde Kelly announced that Pennsylvanians at the Capital had contributed $900 to send 200 of the men back on trains, the railroads having made special rates.

TRUCKS TO RESCUE

Father Cox dispatched a fleet of trucks toward Washington this afternoon to bring back others.

It was a bedraggled but triumphant crowd that Father Cox brought home, confident in his belief that the demonstration staged in Washington yesterday had materially speeded relief plans.

Orderly and cheerful, as they have been throughout the trip, the tired jobless men offered a striking lesson in the hardihood of the American workman as they jumped from the overloaded trucks at the church.

Nearly all were hungry, few were shaven and all were tired to the point of exhaustion. A few still were asleep when the autos

The Rev. James R. Cox, "general" of his army of Pittsburgh's jobless men on the long march to Washington, pictured as he stepped from his lead truck, purchased a Sun-Telegraph and prepared to enter parish house. Father Cox was pleased with the trip.

AIM ACHIEVED, PRIEST SAYS

Weary and worn out by loss of sleep, Father Cox today predicted government action to relieve unemployment. He said:

"It has been a glorious success.

"I really believe that it will accomplish something. I think that you will soon see some action by Congress. We made them realize that to go on ignoring pleas for relief was playing with fire.

"Our real purpose was accomplished. It was to show the people of this great nation that man can point out to government officials their real duty when they have failed to see it.

"The demonstration in Washington woke up many to the seriousness of present conditions and made them realize that immediate relief is necessary."

'Three Gun' Wilson Sent to Nebraska

Word was received at prohibition headquarters here today that Harold D. (Three Gun) Wilson, former deputy administrator in Pittsburgh, who has been filling the same position in Delaware, has been transferred to Omaha, Neb.

DUCE GUARDED FROM BOMBS

ROME, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Watchful officials guarded all ports of entry into Italy today following receipt of information that bombs intended for Premier Mussolini and King Victor Emanuel are on the high seas in the hold of the mail steamer Excalibur, on its way from the United States.

The situation was further complicated by reports of the discovery of anti-Fascist bomb plots at Paris and Nice.

PARIS, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—An attempt upon the life of Signor Gentile, Italian consul-general in Paris, was made today. He was wounded in the thigh by a bullet from a revolver.

Police said the assailant was Michel Richichi, a native of Palermo, and formerly professor of belles lettres at the Italian school in Paris. He was arrested.

Hurt in Crash

Those injured when one of the rear-guard trucks of Father Cox's jobless marchers upset near Hagerstown, Md., today included:

PETERS, FRANKLIN M., 31, Conway, Pa., severe injuries to head and shoulders; in Washington County hospital.

CUNNINGHAM, JOSEPH, 42, 1170 Lincoln avenue, Steubenville, O., injuries to pelvis; in hospital.

RED CROSS TO HELP MINERS

Will Use Million for Relief; Gifford to Favor U. S. Aid Where Local Funds Fail

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The Red Cross will spend $1,000,000 for relief of miners in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio and Indiana.

Information to this effect, marking a change of front in Red Cross policies, was given the Senate Manufactures Committee today by Walter S. Gifford.

At the same time, the director of the President's relief organization said he would be willing to ask federal help if it developed that the states and communities could not care for their own needy.

PITTSBURGH CITED

Gifford earlier had expressed belief to the committee that the states and local communities would be able to handle their own problems.

Senator La Follette, however, added:

"Then if they are unable to meet the problem you are ready to ask federal aid?"

Gifford replied:

"That is correct, but I want to be very sure that the states, counties and cities could not handle their problems because of the disadvantages of federal action."

Confronted with testimony before the committee, stating it would be impossible for Pittsburgh and Philadelphia to handle their problems, Gifford insisted:

"There is every indication they will get through."

Senator LaFollette asked:

"What do you mean getting through?"

Gifford conceded the relief in some instances would have to be the most meager.

'PROSPEROUS STATES'

The President's relief director described Ohio, Illinois and Pennsylvania as "prosperous states," and he believed, despite failure of these legislatures to act, they would get along, adding:

"We can't expect the poorer states to pay for them."

Senator Costigan asked how much of private funds had been raised under the national relief organization. Gifford said he had no accurate data. In reply to another question he said he considered $15 a week adequate relief for a family.

Pressed about lack of information, Gifford said he had data on the situation last year, "but we can't stop to take a census every day or people would starve while we were doing it."

Gifford said he thought the increase in unemployment was stopped this fall, but in a reply to a direct question said:

"I do not think the employment situation is improving. I am hopeful."

'Lysistrata' Banned, Nance O'Neill Held

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—Nance O'Neill, stage star, and 46 other members of the cast of "Lysistrata," a classic Greek comedy, were arrested early today in a raid by the Los Angeles vice squad and booked on charges of giving lewd and indecent performances. Miss O'Neill said:

"It's outrageous."

Whom Did Gov. Roosevelt Have in Mind?

GOV. FRANKLIN ROOSEVELT delivered his message Wednesday to the Legislature of New York.

In it he declares that the country needs "leadership broad enough to understand the problems not only of our nation, but of their relationship to other nations: the problems not of New York alone, but of all the forty-seven other states: the problems not of the cities alone, but of the small communities and rural districts as well,—a leadership practical, sound, courageous and alert."

Gov. Roosevelt describes our problems as "NATIONAL in scope" and asserts that it is impossible to solve them "without leadership and a plan and action by our NATIONAL GOVERNMENT."

GOV. ROOSEVELT is emphatically right. The country's problems are NATIONAL in scope and can only be solved by our NATIONAL government.

President Hoover has given the country no leadership at all, unless you can dignify as leadership his unconstitutional agreement upon a moratorium for the benefit of foreign nations, his advocacy of the further reduction of European debts to this country for the benefit of the European debtors, his persistent endeavor to project the United States into the League Court to further involve us in foreign entanglements and his effort to destroy the Army and Navy, our national defense, at a time when all nations hate us and some—like Japan—openly insult us.

If that is leadership it certainly is not the sound and courageous leadership which Gov. Roosevelt demands.

BUT THE President is only the executive branch of government. Congress, the legislative branch, is the more important branch and John N. Garner, speaker of the Democratic House of Representatives, and by virtue of his preeminent national position necessarily the leader of the national Democratic party, is exactly the kind of man, in exactly the kind of place to give Gov. Roosevelt the kind of national leadership which he desires.

The Congress of the United States has to deal with the problems not only of our nation, "but of their relationship to other nations," and John N. Garner, for twenty years a congressman and now speaker of the House of Representatives, will deal with these problems wisely and patriotically.

The Congress has to deal with "the problems not of New York alone but of all the other forty-seven states" and the Democratic party, under the leadership of John N. Garner, will deal with these problems intelligently and sympathetically.

The Congress has to deal with the problems "not of the cities alone but of the small communities and rural districts as well" and John N. Garner, representative of just such a district, will deal with their grave problems considerately and understandingly.

GOV. ROOSEVELT is astonishingly and unselfishly right when he says that our problems are "NATIONAL IN SCOPE" and that it is impossible to solve them without leadership and a plan and action by our NATIONAL GOVERNMENT.

Absolutely right is Gov. Roosevelt, for Congress is the most important part of our NATIONAL GOVERNMENT and John N. Garner, speaker of the Democratic House of Representatives, has the required plan and position and will provide inspiring AMERICAN leadership and vigorous AMERICAN action for the benefit of our own AMERICAN PEOPLE.

The country has had enough "internationalist" leadership for the benefit of foreign nations. IT IS TRYING TO GET RID OF THAT KIND OF LEADERSHIP NOW.

THE COUNTRY has had enough so-called leaders selected by the House of Morgan and operating in the interest of the international bankers. It is trying now to depose the government of bankers, by bankers and for bankers.

Moreover, the people have had all the maudlin sentimentalism and altruistic fanaticism that they

SENATE GETS REPORT ON QUIZ

Probers Say Police Made No Effort to Find Bombers, Striving for Prosecution

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—"Flagrant violations" of California law and by police and prosecution in the famous Mooney-Billings case are charged in a hitherto unpublished report submitted to the Wickersham Commission.

The document, sent to the Senate by the Justice Department in response to a resolution requesting it, never was accepted by the Wickersham Commission, which contended it had no right to review state cases.

The report was made by Zechariah Chafee, Jr., Walter H. Pollak and Carl S. Ctern, research and investigation experts of the commission.

After an exhaustive account of the arrest and conviction of Thomas Mooney and Warren Billings in connection with the 1916 Preparedness Day bombing in San Francisco in 1916, it concluded that:

"There never was any scientific attempt made by the police or the prosecution to discover the perpetrators of the crime.

"The investigation was in reality turned over to a private detective, who used his position to cause the arrest of the defendants.

"The police investigation was reduced to a hunt for evidence to convict the arrested defendants.

"There were flagrant violations of the statutory law of California by both the police and the prosecution in the manner in which the defendants were arrested and held incommunicado, and in the subsequent searches of their home to procure evidence against them.

"After the arrest of the defendants, witnesses were brought to the jails to 'identify' them.

"Immediately after the arrests of the defendants there commenced a deliberate attempt to arouse public prejudice against them by prosecuting officials."

VOTE MACHINES CALLED IN

HARRISBURG, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Return of 1,465 Poole electromatic voting machines from Allegheny, Northumberland and Schuylkill counties to the factory was ordered today by Richard J. Beamish, secretary of the commonwealth.

The machines are to be sent back to permit repairs to make them conform with recommendations made at a recent state examination held here.

Eleven hundred of the machines are in Allegheny County. After the required changes have been made to the machines, Beamish said they will be inspected by his office to ascertain whether they comply with the certificate of approval issued by him last month following the re-examination.

'Common Scold's' Parole Revoked

Allegheny County's first man convicted as a "common scold," under the old common law, today was sentenced to serve the balance of a paroled term imposed May 7, 1930, by visiting Judge A. B. Smith. Charles Rizzo, 57, of 1808 Elpasso street, originally convicted on testimony of his neighbors that he called them vile names, was paroled for a year. Today Judge Smith revoked the parole on complaint of neighbors that Rizzo continued to call them names.

Fordney, Tariff Bill Maker, Dead

SAGINAW, Mich., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Joseph Warren Fordney, member of Congress for 24 years and co-author of the Fordney-McCumber tariff of 1921, died at his home here early today. He was 78.

Max Schoonmaker Cruel, Wife Says, Asking Divorce

Mrs. Susan Power Schoonmaker, socially prominent, of 5803 Wellesley avenue, testified in her divorce suit against Attorney Max V. Schoonmaker, today, in court, that he frequently came home intoxicated, twice struck her with his fists, once threatened to commit suicide and was a habitue of night clubs.

Because of her husband's abuse, the young wife testified, she left him after her baby was born in May, 1930, and went to live in Bradford at the home of his father, Judge F. P. Schoonmaker, of Federal Court, until September of that year when she returned to her own home.

According to her testimony, her husband did a "disappearing act" at the time the baby was born, and his father brought him to the hospital, where she and the baby were.

Her father, Edwin M. Power, president and treasurer of the Power Company, advertising, testified he had tried to reform young Schoonmaker without success. The Schoonmakers were married April 6, 1929. His address is given as 206 Ruskin Apartments.

KLINE PLANS TO TAKE STAND IN OWN DEFENSE AT TRIAL

PARK PREPARES FIGHT TO KEEP ACTION HERE

Prosecutor to Answer All Charges Made in Plea Of Mayor and Succop

Mayor Charles H. Kline, who, along with his deposed Director of Supplies, Bertram L. Succop, yesterday applied to the Pennsylvania Supreme Court for a change in venue, will take the stand in his own defense, it was learned today.

Attorney Edward G. Coll of the Mayor's counsel admitted the Mayor would do so if it is necessary for him to put up a defense.

WILL ANSWER CHARGES

District Attorney A. T. Park and his aides today began drafting their answer to Kline's move for change of venue. The answer will take up each allegation of the Kline petition in order, the prosecutor indicated, and will deny the charge that the Mayor cannot receive a fair trial here and will point out that it would be illogical to have the judge (James H. Gray) who was charged by Kline with being prejudiced against him, try the case. Park has until January 21 to file his answer.

The Mayor's friends are said to believe that if the Supreme Court grants a change of venue either Westmoreland or Erie County will be designated.

The coal and iron police case, the last taken out of Allegheny County, was tried in Venango County.

JURY TO BE CALLED

Counsel for Mayor Kline, Charles B. Prichard, who filed the action in Philadelphia yesterday, and Attorney Coll have both said for weeks that they would not ask for a change in venue; consequently their move came as a surprise.

Attorney Coll declared that they had become satisfied the Mayor could not get a fair trial in this county.

The December grand jury which recommended indictments against deposed City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley, the latter's chief investigator, Arthur G. Burgoyne, and LaSalle Girts is expected to be called in Monday to act on their recommendations. The indictments are only partly drawn.

City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt said today that Controller Kerr has not as yet requested any action against persons who received rebates of penalties in the payment of delinquent taxes.

HOOVER CREDIT PLAN FOUGHT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(INS)—The Hoover plan for speeding the return of national prosperity by creation of a $2,000,000,000 governmental credit corporation ran into stiff opposition in the Senate today, although assured of ultimate passage.

One major stumbling block was removed when Senator Walcott (Rep.), of Connecticut, its author, agreed to eliminate a provision from the bill, which would have made a $1,500,000,000 issue of "reconstruction bonds" exempt from all taxation.

There was opposition as well to a provision permitting loans to "bonafide financial institutions" because of its ambiguity.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon led a fight against another provision, permitting loans to "any closed bank whose assets are adequate to permit restoration of solvency." He insisted aid for closed banks should be provided in a separate bill.

Alderdice Assumes New Budget Post

Robert J. Alderdice, defeated for re-election as a city councilman today assumed his duties as city budget controller, a newly-created position. He will make a report of all city figures to Council monthly. Alderdice, drawing $5,000 yearly, is aided by Harold S. Breitenstein, at $3,600.

Norris and Pinchot To Open Farm Show

HARRISBURG, Jan. 8.—(AP)—United States Senator George W. Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, and Gov. Gifford Pinchot will speak at the mass meeting Monday night, January 18, marking the opening of the 1932 State Farm Products Show here.

4-SYSTEM RAIL PLAN BACKED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Consolidation of eastern railroads into four systems was urged today to the Interstate Commerce Commission by the president of the Chesapeake and Ohio—one of the roads around which the proposed merger would center.

J. J. Bernet, the witness, was the third president of leading eastern roads to urge this action instead of the five-system plan advocated by the commission.

Bernet described the five-system plan as impracticable and said the four New England gateway lines should be assigned to the eastern systems instead of New England.

He followed Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio, and W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania, as a witness at hearings before Chairman Porter, of the commission. These roads, together with the New York Central, have asked the commission to change its 1929 consolidation plan to provide for only four systems. They would be the key lines.

DEMOCRAT FUND REPORT FILED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The Democratic National Committee today reported its expenditures in 1931 totaled $1,030,486, with contributions, loans and other receipts amounting to $1,032,267.

In a report filed with the House clerk by James W. Gerard, treasurer, in compliance with the federal corrupt practices act, outstanding obligations totaled $187,747.

Of this $345,280 is due John J. Raskob, chairman, for loans, and $432,766 to the County Trust Company of New York for borrowed money.

Unpaid bills were listed at $8,731. The report showed a balance of $6,466 at the beginning of 1931 and $8,247 on January 1, 1932.

Robber Suspect Held by Police

James Golden, 27, of 74 Home street, was held for further investigation at a Central Police Court hearing today. City detectives said they had connected him with a score of drug and chain store robberies in Lawrenceville.

OPPOSE TRUCE WITH HITLER

BERLIN, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Possibility that large groups of Chancellor Heinrich Bruening's present followers may balk at any proposal to "deal" with Adolf Hitler or to give the National Socialists posts in the cabinet was predicted in political circles and by some Berlin newspapers today.

The Socialist paper Vorwaerts said that, while the Socialists favor retaining the veteran Paul Von Hindenburg as President, they will not permit a "bargain" between the government and the Rightists to keep him there. The Morgenpost said it learned the Nazis have demanded two cabinet posts as the price of harmony.

With this situation in mind, political observers hesitated to guess what will be the result of the Chancellor's attempt to obtain an agreement, begun when he conferred with Hitler yesterday.

Woman Wills $5,000 To Maintain Pets

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Pets of the late Mrs. Sarah C. Lincoln, gnawing bones and lapping milk as usual, will continue to do so under terms of a $5,000 fund set aside for them.

Mrs. Lincoln left the bulk of her $25,000 estate to a friend, Mrs. Maud E. McKean, of Pasadena, with the provision that $5,000 be used as a "pet fund."

Norristown Man Heads Game Board

BANKER ADMITS FOREIGN BOND 'HAND-OUT'

Former President of Peru's Son Given $415,000 in Deal, Senate Informed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP)—A New York banker told today of the payment of a $415,000 commission to the son of a Peruvian president for promoting $100,000,000 of loans now in default.

He was Frederick Strauss, of the J. & W. Seligman Company, testifying before the Senate Banking Committee's foreign securities investigation.

Strauss said the son of former President Segua was among a group of promoters who arranged the loans through his firm. The Seligman Company made a gross profit on the deals of $5,475,000 and a net profit of $601,000. A total of $533,000 was paid to a group of promoters in Peru who arranged the deals. This included that paid to Juan Segua.

Questioned, Strauss said he was aware that former President Segua and his son were being prosecuted for the transaction.

Profits revealed to the committee by New York bankers in the sale of foreign securities neared the $100,000,000 mark with the testimony of Strauss, who said his firm had made gross profits of $1,321,265.

Previous witnesses, representing seven companies, have testified to total profits of $82,896,677 to their firms.

WESTINGHOUSE AGAIN CUTS PAY

Salary reductions ranging from 10 per cent minimum to 30 per cent maximum were announced by A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company today. The cuts will be in effect for all of 1932 and will cover all salaries over $200 a month. The reductions will be adjusted in line with the earnings of the company.

This action follows reductions in salary of 10 per cent with vacations without pay instituted last year. The vacations brought the reduction to about 25 per cent. This year vacations with pay will be reinstated.

Robertson said that the move will reduce expenses and will make it apparent to employes that improved earnings will increase their own pay. The ratio of earnings to salary reductions will be on the basis of $40,000 earnings to 1 per cent reduction.

Salaries under $200 a month will be reduced seven-tenths as much. Hourly wages will be reduced 10 per cent effective January 1.

Several days ago Robertson stated that operations for the 1931 would result in a deficit.

30 Billion Public Debts in Default

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The Herald Tribune says a survey prepared by Dr. Max Winkler, Wall street economist and authority on international financial statistics, places the world total of government, state and municipal obligations, both external and internal, now in default, at $30,000,000,000.

KIN OF SLAYERS DENIES THREAT

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Paul Young, brother of Harry and Jennings Young, slain desperadoes, appeared today at the police station with his attorney and denied he had made threats in connection with the trapping by police of his brothers, wanted for the slaying of six Springfield (Mo.) peace officers last Saturday. During the siege, the two either committed suicide or killed each other.

Paul Young had been sought for questioning in connection with the shooting of the officers, but Ed Waddle, chief of police of Springfield, said he was certain only the two brothers slain had any connection with it.

Unconfirmed reports had said the name "Paul Young" was signed to a letter threatening J. F. Tomlinson, carpenter, because he had "tipped" police the killers had rented a room in his house.

BINGHAM MAKES PLEA FOR BEER IN SENATE

Yale Professor Holds Brew Beneficial to Collegians; Bill Would Ban Saloons

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP)—A plea for what he described as "good, wholesome beer" was made today by Senator Bingham before the Senate committee considering proposals to amend the Volstead act.

The Connecticut Republican was accompanied by Prof. Yandell Henderson, of Yale University, who testified "student beer drinking is harmless physically and advantages socially" and that 4 per cent of alcohol by volume is not intoxicating.

Bingham is the author of a bill proposing 4 per cent beer. This and another 2.75 per cent beer proposal by Senator Bulkley (Dem.), of Ohio, are being studied by the committee.

Bingham cited the Wickersham Commission report to show there are "far more speakeasies than during the old days of the saloon."

He said his bill is constitutional and that saloons would not be reopened under his proposal. He explained the beer would be sold only in cases to consumers and in cafes and hotels with meals.

Prof. Henderson asserted:

"Speaking as a university professor in contact with students for the past 40 years, I would say that cutting off beer has had a bad effect upon college student life in promoting the drinking of the highly intoxicating forms of distilled spirits.

"Beer drinking hurts no one, while football, the other great student amusement, killed 40 young men and boys this last season."

BAN CONTINUED IN WATER SUIT

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 8. Preliminary injunction granted Monday against the city of Monessen, restraining it from interfering with the lines of the Tri-City Water Company of Pittsburgh or turning water into seven houses in Monessen, was continued today until final hearing by Judge C. E. Whitten.

The court says the controlling question in the case is the city of Monessen's acting in behalf of the Board of Health's right to supply houses where service had been discontinued for non-payment of bills and cancellation of contracts, by turning on water without consent of the water company and without agreeing to pay for consumption.

The city held the present condition was a nuisance due to fear of contagion. Judge Whitten ruled he could not abate a nuisance in an unlawful manner, by confiscating property. The court ruled that approval of Monessen's action would be to conclude that the number of dwellings to be supplied without cost would be increased without limit.

Judge Whitten suggests the city might induce the Public Service Commission to alter its rules.

Quarrel Fatal to 2 Among 18 in Home

ELKINS, W. Va., Jan. 8.—(AP)—A quarrel between two members of a crowded household ended in the killing of one of them and suicide of the other near Mingo last night.

Arthur L. Carnell, 41, shot and killed his wife's brother, George Louk, 23, at the home of Louk's parents, and an hour later killed himself. Quartered in the house were 18 persons. These included the Elder Louks, their children and nine grandchildren.

Witness in Will Contest Held Insane

WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 8.—Harold W. Becker, president of the Wheeling Building Material Company, was today adjudged mentally unbalanced and was taken to a Pittsburgh hospital. He had appeared as one of the principal witnesses in the James L. Hawley will contest here. Becker's testimony was of such a nature that Judge J. Harold Brennen asked for a mental examination.

Home-Bound Garbo Insists She Loves No One

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Greta Garbo talked yesterday for her public. The Swedish screen star, usually a sphinx, said, while en route to Hollywood from New York:

"I don't like most people.

"Ah, but who knows what the future holds? No, I am not in love. No, I am not ever to marry. No, I am not to stop playing in the movies. I am not weary of them. They are my life to me."

Miss Garbo's face was almost hidden by the high collar of a mink coat and the wide, floppy brim of a brown felt hat. Striding toward a taxicab, she admitted:

"I am happy to be far, far from New York and to go home again. They are so impolite in New York. They give me no peace. Now I feel happier to be far away."

She was questioned about the son of the crown prince of Sweden, reported attentive to her during a visit to her native land, where she started life as a jather girl in a barber shop. And Greta said:

"I forgot him. I love no one."

Pitt to Hold Graduation Exercises in Stadium

Commencement exercises of the University of Pittsburgh, scheduled for June 8, and probably each year thereafter, will be held in the Pitt Stadium, according to announcement today by Dr. John G. Bowman, chancellor.

Lack of an auditorium of sufficient size to enable relatives and friends of the graduates to attend was given as the reason for transferring the exercises from Syria Mosque to the big bowl.

While the Mosque seats 3,500, it was said, many have been turned away at previous commencements. The graduating classes at Pitt average around 1,400.

A new amplifying system will be installed in the Stadium and three platforms for speakers erected. No provision for inclement weather will be made. The university authorities point out that in the last 23 years the weather has been such as to permit outdoor ceremonies.

CHEERING CROWDS HAIL RETURN OF FATHER COX'S ARMY

ended the journey and were roughly, although good-humoredly, awakened by their comrades.

CROWDS LINE STREETS

Crowds lined the Liberty Bridge and the downtown streets as the parade entered the city.

Long before noon the streets near the church were crowded with people anxious to pay tribute to Father Cox and his loyal supporters.

The army moved toward Pittsburgh so rapidly that plans for a huge reception at the Pitt Stadium went awry.

The celebration at Old St. Patrick's Church was arranged instead.

Attorney Henry Ellebogen, one of Father Cox's aides, and Miss Roslyn Miller, one of his secretaries, informed of the nearness of the caravan, hurriedly organized a reception committee.

City and county officials and a large group of citizens went to the city line on Saw Mill Run boulevard to welcome the army back home.

GREET VANGUARD

Director of Public Safety Clark and Supt. of Police Walsh personally headed the police details to escort the crusading priest and his army to Old St. Patrick's.

The caravan left Uniontown early today for Pittsburgh following three routes.

The main body moved down Route 51, through Star Junction, Perryopolis and Elizabeth, then crossing the river and coming in Sawmill Run boulevard to the Liberty Tubes.

Another large group followed Route 40, coming through Brownsville and joining the first section at Elizabeth.

Still others arrived via Washington, Pa.

Every one of the 35 motorcycle patrolmen who met the caravan at the city line, later went to the neighborhood of the church, along with 16 mounted patrolmen to aid in handling traffic and spectators.

Traffic patrolmen were assigned to each corner along Liberty avenue from the Pennsylvania Station to Thirty-second street.

The dash homeward began yesterday immediately after the demonstration in Washington, which climaxed the drive of 15,000 Western Pennsylvanians on the nation's capital in search of unemployment relief.

GENEROUS WELCOME

The reception in Washington was more than had been expected by even the most optimistic of the marchers. The caravan, swollen by 5,000 more men from communities near the capital, were treated royally by police, and welfare representatives and given a welcome reception by Senator James J. Davis and Congressman Clyde M. Kelly.

Senator David A. Reed, after discussing the resolution of the marchers with Father Cox, said:

"The word that he and his column have brought to Washington is not news to those o' us who know Pittsburgh conditions, for we have seen it with our own eyes.

"I think Father Cox is right when he says this is a critical test of the present organization of society.

"We are out brothers' keepers—at least to the extent of doing everything in our power to put an end to the present distress.

"It can't be done by the government alone."

The departure from Washington was orderly and rapid. Given the best wishes by the federal district officials and food by Senator Davis and welfare organizations, the army of jobless left about 5 o'clock. As a farewell gift, Senator Davis furnished 35,000 gallons of gasoline for the trucks and automobiles in the caravan.

Jobless Army Prefers Steak To 'Hot Dogs'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.

The jobless parade of the Rev. James R. Cox, of Pittsburgh, while a demonstration of nation-wide interest, was not without many laughs and heartaches. Visiting among the thousands of jobless in their makeshift camps in parking lots and in temporary quarters, one could always find the men in the best of spirits.

The jobless called the "hot dogs" served them here "Hoover's turkeys." One man said:

"A good beefsteak sure would look good to me; I ain't seen one in four years except through a restaurant window. Of course, we are thankful for the hot dogs."

The list of casualties included Archie Carlson, 23, of McKeesport, and John Yeager, 49, of Carrick, who collapsed while standing in line preparing to march on the Capitol. John Morsky, of Indianola, 29, also collapsed while standing in a coffee line.

Allen V. De Ford, Washington food dealer, worked hard to make the stay of the jobless comfortable. He furnished 11,000 apples and 1,600 doughnuts and sugar buns. Funds for feeding the visitors were donated by the District Committee on Employment from proceeds of the Coast Guard-Marine football game held recently.

The marchers resent any reference to themselves as "Reds." Andrew Schultz, of Swissvale, said indignantly:

"We aren't Red or even mildly pink; all we want is jobs and some assurance from the government that something will be done to prevent this mess in the future. I used to make $18 a day. Seems like it couldn't be true, but it was. I got my old check book to prove it."

Mrs. Schultz accompanied her husband to Washington, one of the few women in the line of march. Their 14-year-old daughter stayed at home to care for three younger children.

The experience of 600 men traveling here in open gondolas and box cars from Blairsville was described by John Neil, 59, a miner of Graceton, Pa. Neil said:

"More than 600 of us clung to boxcars on a freight train which left Blairsville Tuesday night for Johnstown. There the train crew permitted us to get inside. We huddled close together to keep warm and rode from Johnstown to Altoona."

One hundred and fifty men, said to be members of Father Cox's army, were arrested in Baltimore when railroad police found them riding blind baggage into the city. The men said they were trying to reach Washington. They were released after being warned to remain off railroad property.

In seeking out women who might have made the trip, a reporter asked a young man on one of the trucks if he had brought his wife. He replied sarcastically:

"Wife? I have trouble enough finding food for myself, the fact that I ain't involved no woman in this mess is the only comfort I got these days."

Two Brothers Pose As Sisters 33 Years

ANDERSON, Ind., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Gene Douglas Armstrong and Noel Lee Armstrong, brothers, went about their farm work today with new names, supplanting the ones they had adopted in the 33 years they posed as sisters in feminine attire.

Gene Douglas was Geneva and Noel Lee was Nola officially until Judge Lawrence Busby granted their petitions to renounce the names and take news ones yesterday.

PEDIGREED DOG FINISHES LONG JOB MARCH

Blue Ribbon Collie Only Mascot of Capital Trek; Will Aid Relief Fund

Ladide, a 2-year-old pedigreed collie, the only dog in Father Cox's parade to Washington, was welcomed home today, tired and nervous.

Laddie was taken on the trip by his master, F. R. Roitz, of 8446 Dersam street, president of the Pittsburgh Collie Club.

The one who rejoiced most at the homecoming of the collie was Roitz's 3-year-old daughter, Mary Dolores. Mary saw to it that Laddie received more than his share of food.

Laddie is known at the dog shows as "Beau Boulevardier," taking the first prize among the collies at the Sewickley Kennel Club last year. Laddie was presented a gold medal. When a pup, Laddie carried off first prize in a dog show in Greensburg.

Roitz plans to enter Laddie in the dog show held under the auspices of his club for the benefit of Father Cox's Relief Fund, in the South Side Market House, January 30.

EIGHTH HARLAN DEPUTY SLAIN

HARLAN, Ky., Jan. 8.—(INS.)—Flaming guns roared again in troubled Harlan County and as a result another deputy sheriff, the eighth in a year, lay dead today, and two local miners were in jail.

The slain officer was Henderson Ramsey, 45, deputy sheriff stationed at Alva, Ky., about 10 miles southwest of here. The shooting occurred near Path Fork, in the vicinity of Insull, Ky., where the mining camp of the Southern Mining Company is located.

The fatal shot was fired by Nathan Howard, who, with his brother, Benny Howard, was in jail.

SCHOOL 'PEEP' CASE DROPPED IN W. VA.

Prosecution Abandoned as Principal and Teachers Agree to Resign Jobs

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 8. — (AP.) — Morality charges growing out of reports of three "peeping" janitors against the suspended principal and two teachers of Morgantown High School were dropped today.

Indictments against the principal, J. T. West, and Misses Blanche Garfield and Esther Williams, the teachers, were nolle prossed in Circuit Court on motion of Prosecuting Attorney Albert Shuman, who said he acted on the unanimous request of the Morgantown District Board of Education.

Shuman told Judge Charles G. Baker that the board had abandoned prosecution after West and the teachers had agreed to resign. The instructors were suspended last September. West was tried in October but the jury disagreed.

The charges grew out of reports of three janitors, who said they had peeped into West's office through a hole in the ceiling. Shuman said he gave no credence to the charges and obtained indictments only after the board had requested an examination.

In granting the motion to nolle prosse, Judge Baker said he was "thoroughly agreeable." He added that to retry the case would be "a crime against the children of this community."

May West's Novel Banned in Capital

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—A novel written by Mae West is among those which must be removed from sale by Washington bookstands, Leo A. Rover, United States attorney, said today.

Not long ago, one of Rover's men went to see the West play, "The Constant Sinner," and threatened the cast with arrest. The company left town immediately.

Wife Divorces Dry Officer 'For Drinking'

DETROIT, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—The drinking and literary proclivities of Daniel Shipley, federal prohibition agent, now stationed at Pittsburgh, were just two of the reasons why his wife, Mrs. Irene Shipley, today had won her freedom.

Judge Allan Campbell granted her divorce plea when she said Shipley, because of his duties, often came home drunk and abusive. On one occasion, Mrs. Shipley added, an all-night argument over the qualities of a book led her to a nervous breakdown.

The Pittsburgh prohibition headquarter's records show Shipley came here from the Cincinnati headquarters about a year ago. His home, officials said, was in Detroit.

VICTORIES GIVE LENZ CHANCE

By J. C. OESTREICHER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Ely Culbertson may win his much-publicized match against Sidney Lenz by nothing more than the proverbial skin of his teeth.

The tournament goes into its final session tonight with Culbertson only 8,770 points ahead.

With the aid of excellent cards at exactly the right time, Lenz and Commander Winfield Liggett, Jr., last night won six out of seven rubbers played and lopped 5,105 points from Culbertson's previous lead of 14,175.

This surprising gain, the largest made in the course of a single evening since the tournament began just a month ago, actually brought Lenz within reaching distance of victory. But experts conceded he will need a couple of slam bids and a lot of luck. Six rubbers will be played, with Mrs. Josephine Culbertson returning as her husband's partner for the finale.

Three factors were responsible for Culbertson's heavy loss last night. One was the preponderance of good cards held by his opponents. Another was the expert and cautious play of Lenz and Liggett. The third was the performance of Howard Schenken, youthful importer. An excellent bridge player, he and Culbertson failed to get together any too well.

Pinchot Says Faith In Leaders Wanes

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 8.—(INS.)—America is faced with the problem of "leaders who refuse to lead," in the opinion of Gifford Pinchot, governor of Pennsylvania. Speaking last night at Yale University under the auspices of the divinity school, Gov. Pinchot declared "we have lost all faith in the voices who keep predicting that prosperity is just around the corner."

Big Truck Knocks House From Base

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 8.—A dwelling was moved from its foundation and two men narrowly escaped death when a huge grocery van crashed into the home of J. A. Jobe, at Delmont, after striking the automobile of Adam Mika. James Xrocker, 25, of Altoona, truck driver, was knocked unconscious in the crash.

Mail Sacks Found, Looted of $100,000

LOWELL, Mass., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Two mail sacks believed by police to be those which, containing $100,000 in registered mail and currency, disappeared December 31 while in transit from Lowell to Boston, were found yesterday near the highway between Lowell and Tewksbery.

TOKIO CABINET RESIGNS AFTER BOMB PLOT

Emperor Hirohito Escapes Explosive Hurled at Him By Korean During Parade

By JAMES R. YOUNG
International News Service.

TOKIO, Jan. 8.—The Seiyukai party cabinet resigned today a few hours after a bomb was hurled at Emperor Hirohito during a public parade by a young Korean.

The resignation conformed to the usual Japanese custom following an attempt to assassinate the ruler.

Meanwhile, American Ambassador Forbes presented to the Foreign Office Secretary Stimson's latest note of protest on the Manchurian situation, calling Japan's attention to the Kellog pact and the nine-power treaty.

It was intimated the Tokio government would not alter its Manchurian policy, holding that what it terms its operations against Chinese bandits are not of a nature to warrant intervention by world powers.

Stimson's Note to Japan Increases Tension

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—With Japan and China formally notified by the Washington government that it cannot recognize legality of the situation in South Manchuria created by Japanese military occupation of Chinchow, international tension as to developments in the Orient was tightened today but with no indication what the next move might be.

Washington has invoked the nine-power treaty negotiated in this city in 1921-22 to protect China's territorial and administrative integrity, at the same time citing the "open-door" policy in China and the Kellogg-Briand anti-war pact, in a terse note to the Japanese and Chinese governments.

China Asks League Boycott Against Japan

NANKING, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—The Chinese Nationalist government announced late tonight it is appealing to the League of Nations Council to declare a world-wide economic boycott against Japan by invoking the economic classes of article 16 of the league covenant.

China at the same time is seriously considering breaking off diplomatic relations with Japan and is taking measures to meet a further advance of Japanese troops south of the Great Wall in a threatened advance upon Tientsin.

Olson Love Slaying Suspect Arrested

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Awaiting word from authorities at Prairie du Chien, Wis., police here today held a man identified by a former resident of that city as Erdman M. Olson, wanted on a charge of murdering his sweetheart, Clara Olson, in September, 1926.

The body of Miss Olson was found December 2, 1926, in a shallow grave near Olson's home. The girl, who was shortly to become a mother, was beaten to death. Erdman Olson, 18, a student at Gale College, disappeared before the body was unearthed.

Released 2nd Time In Baker Murder

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Henry Barrere, 39, of Washington, D. C., arrested as a suspect in the murder of Mary E. Baker, Arlington County, Va., April 12, 1930, has been released here at the request of Department of Justice agents.

Government officials said the man had been previously arrested in Montreal, Canada, taken to Washington and exonerated. He was identified through fingerprints.

JACKSON FETE FINDS 2 BOOMS UNDER WAY

Others in Making as Hosts Of Democracy Gather to Honor Party Founder

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The hosts of Democracy moved into Washington today for their Jackson jubilee to find two presidential booms in full swing, and several others lurking around the corner.

Supporters of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt were numerous and active. They exuded confidence in their ability to nominate him and, moreover, claimed sufficient control of the national committee to send the convention to the city of their choice.

But over in Baltimore last night, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, Maryland's four-time Governor, served notice in a characteristically candid speech that he is to be reckoned with. He said:

"Of course, I want to be President. Who would not?"

OUTLINES VIEWS

And thereafter, to the cheering of several thousand loyal Marylanders, sprinkled with prominent party figures from other states, the Free State idol painted his platform in broad, sweeping strokes.

He denounced prohibition, cancellation of war debts, paternalism in government, unreasonable tariffs and high taxation. He criticised the administration for "its great silences," and accused it of lack of leadership in the economic crisis.

Prominent as was the talk of Roosevelt and of Ritchie among the party leaders arriving for the Jackson jubilee tonight and the national committee meeting tomorrow, there was one question they were all asking. It was:

"What's Al going to do?"

Like some gigantic question mark, the attitude of Alfred E. Smith dominated all discussion of party affairs.

SMITH GREETS LEADERS

Still the titular leader of the party by reason of his captaincy in 1928, and respected as the only Democratic presidential candidate in history who polled in excess of 15,000,000 votes, the former New York Governor mingled affably with the incoming leaders and preserved his own counsel.

That silence will be broken tonight when he addresses the Jackson banquet, and no Democratic speech in years has been awaited with more expectancy.

With him as the only other speakers on the program tonight will be John W. Davis, the 1924 standard bearer, and James M. Cox, the party's candidate in 1920. Thus the same platform will present the only three living Democratic ex-candidates for the presidency.

MINE CAPTURE REWARD ASKED

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 8.—William Pritts, West Brownsville police chief, who, with Constable Ben Smith, of Coverdale, arrested Louis Ross in the Coverdale mine as an escaped murderer last night, said he would lay claim to the $300 reward offered for the fugitive's apprehension.

Pritts said he employed the aid of Smith in arresting Ross after trailing him to the Allegheny County mining town. A leave of absence had been obtained from his duties here to take the Coverdale mission, he added.

Ross, held at Clarksburg, W. Va., was identified by officials yesterday as Frank Pauletta, sentenced to hang in 1914 for the slaying of a fellow miner.

Harrison County, W. Va., officials had offered a reward for Pauletta's arrest. Chief Pritts disclosed.

Whom Did Gov. Roosevelt Have in Mind?

can afford. They have gone broke being "sugar daddies" for European vampires.

The American people want a "leadership practical, sound, courageous and alert" and AMERICAN. Add that important word American and Gov. Roosevelt's sentence describes the requirements admirably.

MR. BAKER, Mr. Young, Gov. Ritchie and Gov. Roosevelt, too, are all good men, but unfortunately all internationalists, just like Mr. Hoover, only a little more so, all trying their utmost to put the United States not only into the League Court, but into the League of Nations, all fanatical followers of Woodrow Wilson, inheriting his visionary ambition to be president of the world, all sitting up nights worrying about Europe without a thought about our people of America and the plight that European duplicity and European defalcation have put us in.

It is unfortunate for these otherwise worthy candidates, but nobody wants internationalists these days, except the international bankers, who would like to send MORE money abroad to build up European enterprises and have NONE left at home to sustain American industry and employment.

NO, GOV. ROOSEVELT, American labor, in and out of employment, does not want any more internationalists in office. American farmers, precariously existing, do not want any more internationalists. American industry, working on half time, does not want any more internationalists. Legitimate American business, prostrated by the depression, does not want any more internationalists.

The American people want "a leadership practical, sound, courageous and alert" AND AMERICAN.

You forgot AMERICAN, Gov. Roosevelt, and that is the most important word of all.

THE AMERICAN people want a true and tried AMERICAN for president, a man not only with an American plan but with an American RECORD. A man very much like John N. Garner, speaker of the Democratic House of Representatives and leader of the national Democratic party.

Maybe Gov. Roosevelt had John N. Garner in mind all the time.

JAPAN'S NAVAL GROWTH CITED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—A Japanese sea force growing more rapidly than either the American or British navies was cited yesterday by Chairman Hale, of the Senate Naval Committee as a reason for building the United States fleet up to treaty limits.

In addition, the committee heard Secretary Adams, of the Navy Department, say it was "extremely doubtful" that actual cash for new naval construction would be sought at this session.

Guarded in his remarks, Adams said he could not officially approve Hale's bill for a treaty limit navy for the reason that President Hoover and the budget bureau had not yet had opportunity to give their views on it.

His previous personal indorsement of a similar measure before a House committee brought a Democratic suggestion that he ought to resign because his views differed from those of the President.

DEATH THREATS MADE BRITISH

BOMBAY, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—The Hindustan republican army today issued a threat to assassinate government officers who attempted to resist them in their campaign against British rule.

A large red poster displayed in a prominent spot in the city warns congressmen not to interfere with their "solemn duties" or they would kill certain marked officials.

While the legal experts of Mahatma Gandhi's forces today prepared for a court fight to free the aged leader from jail, the government continued its campaign by imprisoning still more of Gandhi's lieutenants.

Leaders arrested today included the general secretary of the Nationalist Congress, taken at Karachi with a number of others, M. Gujerat, organizer of the boy volunteer corps, and an aged Moslem leader, Abbas Tyabji.

Women continued to carry on a large share of the civil disobedience.

Woman Freed After Quiz in Auto Case

Esther Davis, 26, of 68 Ruth street, Mt. Washington, was released by city detectives after being picked up by Carrick police in Brownsville road early Tuesday. Police reported the woman had been forced out of an automobile by two men, but she denied this, saying she had left the machine of her own accord.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

NEW ERA TO MEET AT CONGRESS

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

A wedding of marked interest here, because the bridegroom represents one of Pittsburgh's most notable families, took place today at noon in Wilmington, Del.

"Ommelanden," the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. William Samuel Hilles was the scene of the ceremony. The bride is Katherine Lee Bayard Hilles and the bridegroom George Lewis Callery, son of the J. Dawson Callerys, of Pittsburgh. Because of mourning in the Callery family the wedding was small.

The Rt. Rev. Phillip Cook, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Delaware, was the officiant.

Former Senator Thomas F. Bayard, of Delaware, gave his niece in marriage. She wore a gown of white lace over which cascaded a veil of tulle. She carried lilies of the valley.

Her matron-of-honor, Mrs. M. Callery Coudert, of New York, wore a Vionnet gown of gold lace brocade, trimmed with moss green velvet, and a hat of velvet in moss green tone, and she carried tallaman roses. The mother of the bride appeared in a black velvet Vionnet gown with a hat to match, and she had a corsage of purple orchids and lilies of the valley; the mother of the bridegroom chose a prune-colored transparent velvet gown with a hat to match and had a corsage of deep purple orchids. Francis A. Callery, of New York, was best man.

Brocade Gown

The ceremony took place in the library before a small Sixteenth century prie dieu. Vases of calla lilies decirated the mantelpiece with torchiers bearing seven candles placed on either side. Smilax and cibotium ferns supplemented the decorations.

A small reception is being held at 3 o'clock. After a wedding trip, Mr. Callery and his bride will reside at Port Sewell, Fla., during the winter and on the French Riviera in summer.

* * *

Yesterday afternoon I stopped in at the Carnegie Art Galleries for the preview of the Alexander M. Byers collection of old masters. And of course I saw ever so many women of the smart set, and some men, too, even in the afternoon.

Seen at Preview

Mrs. Samuel Harden Church was there in a smart black costume, and I saw Mrs. B. F. Jones, Jr., chatting with Mrs. T. Howe Nimick, who chose a jaunty fitted black pony skin coat and a black felt turban having a long, black feather placed vertically, quite the smartest chapeau I've seen in a long time.

The William A. Duckhams were strolling through the galleries. Georgia Pearson, Virginia Johnston in a red crepe frock and a leopard skin coat.

Chatting with a group of friends were Mrs. Roy A. Hunt who wore a green wool dress and a black velvet hat with red feathers, and Mrs. George P. Bassett. Mrs. William S. Moorhead was in red wool crepe and Mrs. H. Allen Marbesney in black satin.

Green Wool

Louise Evans wore deep chartreuse green crepe with sleeves made with graceful fullness and gathered into a tight-fitting cuff, and a pert felt hat of the same shade. Her mother, Mrs. Henry Oliver Evans, was in black.

Others I noticed in the crowded galleries were Mrs. F. O. Blackburn, Mrs. W. L. Jones, Jr., Mrs. Alex Nimick in a cherry red wool crepe dress and turban, and Mrs. W. J. Holland.

* * *

A tea for patrons of Thurston Preparatory School, Shady avenue, at which they'll meet members of the alumnae active in the reorganization of the school, will be held Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the school. Miss Marjorie Pratt, headmistress, and Mrs. J. O. Miller, president of the alumnae, will be in charge.

Tea for Patrons

Gertrude Remmel, of Little Rock, Ark., arrives Sunday night to be the house guest of Virginia Blalas, of Wallingford street. She and Virginia were classmates at National Park Seminary. Later Gertrude will leave for New York to sail on the S. S. Pennsylvania for a European tour.

Frazee, of Confluence, which was solemnized on New Year's Day in the First Christian Church of Wilkinsburg. Officiating was the Rev. D. Park Chapman.

Miss Norton was given in marriage by her aunt, Mrs. Orlando Miller, of Edgewood. Mrs. S. C. Whipkey, of Connellsville, was the matron of honor, and Miss Mildred E. Maxwell, of Greensburg, the maid of honor. Isabel Wilson, of Youngstown, O., small niece of the bride, was flower girl. Serving as best man was Paul Thomas Meyers, of Confluence, and ushers included S. C. Whitney, Park Kurtz, Donald Beggs and William Fritz. There was a reception in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association. Mr. and Mrs. Frazee will make in Boswell, Pa.

MISS HARRIET WAINWRIGHT . . . VISITING IN CALIFORNIA

Miss Wainwright, daughter of Mrs. Harris E. Wainwright, Beechwood boulevard, now visiting with her aunt, Mrs. H. W. Ward, La Jolla, Cal. Miss Wainwright's prominent in social circles.

Outlook Alliance Plans Washington Celebration

At an executive board meeting of the Outlook Alliance yesterday, first steps were taken towards an elaborate Washington bicentennial celebration next month and the club's silver anniversary on April 21 at which the founder, Miss Grace Van W. Henderson of Meadville, will be honor guest.

The regular club meeting followed the board meeting yesterday and for program there were contralto solos by Mrs. Mary Rhoades McBride and two-piano numbers by Miss Mildred Wood and Miss Betty Heyser, daughter of the president, Mrs. E. B. Heyser.

NEWEST ENSEMBLES OBTAIN SMARTNESS FROM SIMPLICITY

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Jan. 8.—Even at the risk of becoming repetitious, we have to inform you that lots of ensembles are now being shown at the leading houses. Sometimes, only one touch of color or of detail links the frock and the coat together, yet somehow one knows unmistakably that the two garments are affinities, created solely for each other. Molyneux is an adept at creating the subtle ensemble, and this season, with the return of this type of costume, should have a grand success with his smart models. However elaborate the materials or furs used, there is always something simple about the smart ensemble.

* * *

AS MOLYNEUX is one of the designers interested always in the ensemble, whether it is in fashion or not, we naturally went to his beautiful showroom to select a representative ensemble for sketching purposes. Thus we present a drawing of one of his newest models, a most charming afternoon ensemble. The coat is of black velvet with a waistdeep cape, flaring sleeves and a standing collar of black fox. In back the cape is set onto a deep V-shaped yoke. A center seam running down the middle of the back opens midway to permit the insertion of a narrow godet with a slight flare at the hemline. The dress is of blue white satin and is linked to the black coat through the medium of the black patent leather. The pleated inset in the bodice, pleated flounce on the skirt are many features of many of the mid-season models at this house. A jabot collar, knotted in front, is cut with a marked circular flare and circular ruffles edge the short sleeve. This type of sleeve is also liked by Molyneux, who uses it on many of his afternoon frocks. It is softly becoming and an excellent compromise between the short and long sleeve.

They'll Lead a Busy Life

New Misses' Frocks at $29.50

Simple in line and informal in length, so they can be worn in town under a coat, and yet are so elegant in finishing details and so beautifully fine in texture that they can go to the smartest afternoon parties.

Take the frocks pictured: The one of pastel blue silk crepe (also to be had in bright shades or black), with interesting sleeves, fastens at the throat with elaborate rhinestone links and its belt has a series of rhinestone buckles. . . . The other frock, black with removable white waistcoat-jacket, has rhinestone buttons at front and rhinestone rings at back.

CLEVER HATS for THE CLEVER

$1.75

It was a clever idea of the house that produced them (a firm that regularly makes nothing less than five-dollar hats), to furnish hats to sell at this price rather than be idle in the interim season. And clever young women will pick them up quickly.

All are of the little, close-fitting type, of finely tucked silk crepe, fabric straws, synthetic straws or novelty braids. In red shades, vivid blue, shades of green, brown, beige and black.

WOMEN TO SEW QUILTS SOUGHT

Women volunteers to sew 200 quilts for needy families in the Fourteenth Ward are needed by the Squirrel Hill Board of Trade relief committee, 5825 Forbes street, according to George W. Lupton, chairman. The relief committee has cared for 650 men, women and children in the last three weeks, Alex Meanor, secretary, said.

Free prescriptions, medical attention, shoe repairs, haircuts and food and garments have been dispensed. One hundred tons of coal and 150 pairs of new shoes and underwear to 250 children have been distributed. Unemployed men will be given work cutting firewood.

Clothes and shoes for children from 2 to 12 years are especially needed, according to I. J. Mittleberger, assistant secretary, and will be called for by a relief car on telephoning Hazel 6941. The committee plans to continue relief a while, if Squirrel Hill citizens will help.

Gumbert School Costly as Vassar, M'Govern Says

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern yesterday described the Gumbert School for Girls as "A place where it costs as much to maintain a girl as it does at Vassar College."

The Commissioners cut $2,900 from the $50,000 appropriation for operation of the school.

Commissioner C. M. Barr asked Attorney Raymond Evans, member of the school's board to furnish him with an itemized breakdown of the school's expenditures for study.

JUVENILE HOME NEED STRESSED

The Juvenile Court Detention Home is no more, according to the chairman of the board, William H. MacAfee. At yesterday's budget session he said:

"It's not a home, it's a makeshift, a fire trap with its ceilings ready to fall in and porches and steps on the verge of collapse. We are living from hand to mouth in expectation of getting the new building we need so imperatively."

Commissioner Charles C. McGovern said:

"At the earliest possible convenience we are going to help you folks get a new building."

A total of $9,985 was cut from the budget for the home.

MUSIC TEACHER ASKS DIVORCE

Her husband drove away in his car from their home one morning and never returned, Mrs. Elva R. Sholles, music teacher, of 3874 Perrysville avenue, testified in the hearing of her divorce suit against George S. Sholles before Judge Frank P. Patterson. She was 18 when they eloped to Wellsburg, W. Va., in March, 1922.

Mrs. Cecelia A. Hartle, of Haslage avenue, North Side, said her husband, William, now in Forest County, took a butcher knife to their bed one night and on another occasion followed threats with two shots through the floor of their West View home, in testifying before Judge Frank P. Patterson in her divorce suit. They were married in 1912 and she left him February 20, Mrs. Hartle testified.

FRAT SPONSORS BUSINESS TALK

Warning that the industry that today lies supinely on its back waiting for business to pick up will be the last to enjoy benefits of a resumption of activity, was the keynote of the opening business talk of a series at weekly luncheons each Thursday in the Chamber of Commerce held by the Alpha Psi Fraternity.

John W. W. Hallock, of the University of Pittsburgh, was the speaker yesterday. He held as a hopeful sign the increased recognition of industries of the need of constant change of management technique. Marketing and distribution was cited as important factors.

The music committee of the Twentieth Century Club presented the baritone Frederic Baer in the club auditorium yesterday afternoon. The audience seemed to be in post-holiday lethargy, for this fine singer should have awakened a more cordial response.

Mr. Lissfelt

Baer is known here for an unusual performance with the Mendelssohn Choir some years ago. It was then an outstanding bit of oratorio singing, and it is strange that he has never sung there again. A recital of good songs is quite another matter, but he showed himself well schooled in this art of singing miniatures and gave a good entertainment.

Baer's voice is a ringing and clear baritone which he sometimes unnecessarily forces for dramatic effect. He has fine sense of values, is at home in all schools (although he might be more secure in German and French diction), and can sing a rousing sea chanty alongside a delicate serenade with equally moving effects.

Baritones may copy the Saint-Saens aria for it is unknown here and is full of gratifying episodes. It is a long time since we have heard Beethoven's "Die Ehre Gottes" given with such dignity or sung as well. As encores, came the old English song, "The Pretty Creature," Richard Kountz's "Sleigh" won a prize some years ago, and Schubert's "Who is Sylvia." Earl Mitchell played accompaniments in his best manner.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

BURGESS SEEKS NEW TRIAL

Burgess W. O. Kennedy, 40, of Versailles Borough, today was to seek a new trial in Criminal Court following his being found guilty of a misdemeanor charge late yesterday before Visiting Judge A. B. Smith.

Burgess Kennedy was charged by his wife, Mrs. Inez Kennedy, with being too friendly with her former housemaid, Helen Burley, 22. She charged he lived with the girl at a rooming house in Glassport, from October, 1929, to February, 1930. This testimony was backed by Mrs. Netty Sarni, who operated the rooming house, and her daughter, Miss May Sarni. Burgess Kennedy's daughters, Nettie and Ethel, testified against him regarding conversations in their home.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Trichinosis Caused by Parasite

In recent years many rules and regulations intended to safeguard the public health have been made and enforced by the Federal Government. Many of these concern the Federal inspection and supervision of meats.

Dr. Copeland

Before these health precautions were demanded, Trichinosis, a disease caused by eating infected and improperly cured meat, was quite prevalent. I can well remember as a boy hearing of the sad experience of some of our neighbors. They had eaten roast pig for dinner. Two days later the entire family of eight became violently ill. The country doctor was called. He had had much experience with this ailment and immediately attributed it to improperly cured pork.

Trichinosis is a disease caused by a tiny worm which infests meat, mostly pork. This parasite is transmitted only by the eating of improperly cooked and infected meat. Within two or three days to three weeks after the ingestion of trichina-infected pork, the afflicted person is seized with nausea, vomiting, intestinal cramps and usually diarrhea. The disease may be confused with typhoid fever because there are chilliness, sweating and a fever, as in typhoid.

Swelling of the face and eyelids is a common symptom. There is tenderness of the eye muscles, and the eyes ache. Because of this involvement the sufferer believes he has some disease of the eye, and may consult an oculist.

The disease may run its course within a few days, or it may last for weeks. In many cases it is quite serious, requiring attentive care and nursing.

There is one complication of this disease which is spoken of as "post-trichinal rheumatism." This involves the joints, and may persist for many years after recovery from the acute attack.

Immediate medical attention for the afflicted person is imperative. It may be advisable to receive the treatment at a hospital. Frequently home facilities are not adequate for proper care and complete recovery.

City dwellers rarely suffer from this disease. Their food comes through regular channels, subject to federal inspection and supervision. I want particularly to impress upon my readers who live in suburban and country districts, the necessity of careful supervision of meats.

Please remember that curing or smoking hams is not sufficient protection against trichinosis. Thorough cooking is important.

The parasite may be found in pigs that have eaten infected rats. Just how the rat acquires it is not known. But if the pig is infected, the disease will be transmitted to those persons who eat its flesh, unless it is thoroughly cooked.

Contract Bridge

OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Good Strategy Wins Game

Only the soundest strategy and proper deductions won game on the hand below.

Being short of high honors, Z passed. A bid 1-Club; Y made a weak bid of 1-Spade, B passed, to show that he had passed considerable strength. Z bid 3-Hearts; A passed and Y ended contracting with 4-Hearts.

The opening lead was A's king of clubs; Z won the trick; he gave credit for nearly all missing strength to A, figuring probably that both the missing major suit kings were held by A; with nine trumps in the two hands, Z expected that two heart leads would clear his suit. First he must try for a club discard.

The jack of spades was led by Z, covered with A's king, and the trick went to Y's ace. Two winning spades were led from dummy, upon the latter of which Z let go his only remaining club. To prevent a later lead of that suit, Y's only club was led and trumped by Z. Expecting to drop trumps in two leads, Z laid down his ace, followed by a small heart, which was won by A's king.

What was A to lead? He had no more spades or trumps. Z's forethought had stripped both his own hands of clubs; if A led a club, dummy would trump and Z could discard a losing diamond. A knew that unless B held the A-Q of diamonds, game must be lost; if B held those two cards it made no difference whether A or Z led that suit. A decided to lead a low diamond, dummy played low, and B put up his ace, winning the second trick for his side, and causing Z to lose only one more trick no matter what B attempted. By forcing his opponents to lead diamonds, Z lost only two tricks in the suit; had Z led diamonds he must have lost three tricks in that suit and gone down one trick on his contract.

Think over the next hand until tomorrow. Y played the hand at 5-Diamonds. Z opened with a bid of 1-Club; A overcalled with 2-Hearts; Y's 3-Diamonds was carried to 3-No Trumps by Z, and then Y's 4-Diamonds was raised by Z to five. How many tricks can Y win against any defense by A-B?

Opinions About Public and Private Dances Differ

Suppose you were a lonely girl in a big city—young, pretty, longing for fun—but didn't know a soul, what would you do when night came?

Would you sit in your little bare bedroom, eating your heart out with homesick memories of the parties you and the gang used to have back in Greenville? Or, perhaps stroll lonesomely out to the neighborhood movie? Or just walk the mocking streets that held never a friendly smile for you?

Is that what you'd do, if you were a lonely girl in a big city—a nice little girl who wanted to be good and careful as mother had told her to be?

Or would you go to a public dance? Would you follow the happy heels of other homeless youngsters and know an hour or two of laughter and light and adventure?

And if you did would that prove that you were coarse and common and would probably end in the gutter?

DISAPPROVED AT OFFICE

Annette wanted to know. She was a little girl like that—a lonesome little girl who wanted to be good—but the days were unbearably lonely and she used to think longingly of the warm gay dance halls with their music and happy young faces.

But one day the bunch at the office got to talking and according to them it was thumbs down on any femme who danced anywhere except in private. So poor Annette began to worry.

"Are they right?" she wailed. "Must I just sit at home and watch other kids enjoying themselves? Are public dances bad and dangerous?"

So we asked the gang for answers, and here they are:

"Are public dances bad? You bet they are," snorts Nona. "You don't meet anybody but a lot of tramps, and if you don't watch out you'll get in some crowd that'll hand you plenty of grief."

"I know you won't mean to. You think now that you'll just dance and then beat it home without really making up to anyone. But some day you'll meet some dance hall sheik that you'll mistake for Prince Charming, and then you'll find you're in plenty of trouble. No nice girl ever hangs out at any such place!"

A DIFFERENT OPINION

Maybe you'll agree with that. But here's one of those dance hall sheiks speaking for himself, and for the girls, too, and what he says is plenty.

"Whoever told Annette that 'no nice girl ever goes to a public dance,' is a popeyed liar," is his opening shot. "For three years now I have gone to public dances all over this country, and I have met plenty of very nice girls.

"With women making their own living now, just as men do, why isn't it just as proper for a girl to go to a public dance as it is for a man, providing she goes to the right kind of a one?

"There may be some girls attending public dances who are no good, but why judge the majority by them? Dang this hypocrisy, anyway! If a girl wants to be bad, she needn't go to a dance to be that way!

"As a matter of fact, I have met hundreds of girls at public dances to whom I can take off my hat any day! And I just want to tell Annette this—if you enjoy dancing, go on and go! Pay no attention to your scandalmongering lady friends. And here's hoping that some day, some where, you'll meet some nice boy who will take you places and be your pal."

And as for public dances versus private ones, here's Tess with some red-hot low-down on that, too.

FAVORS PUBLIC DANCES

"I'm in the same boat as Annette," she says, "and I go twice a week. I can't see anything wrong in it, so long as you behave yourself. Of course you meet all types of people there, but so do you everywhere else, and you don't have to mingle with the wrong kind unless you want to. I have met some very nice people there. And when you don't know anyone, where else can you go?

"As for private parties being so much better, I could tell you plenty of stories about girl friends whose parents wouldn't allow them to go to public dances but thought private ones all right.

"They went to houses or to roadhouses, where no one knew what went on, and in a good many cases the young folks didn't know themselves after a few cocktails.

"No matter what people say about public dances, certainly the things can't happen there that sometimes happen at some private parties. Public dances are chaperoned, anyway.

"How about that stranger? Is it true that public dances are, after all, safer than private ones?"

Household Hints

Ink stains can often be removed from linen if rubbed with a cut tomato or lemon.

If the stain is old and one application is not sufficient to remove discoloration, repeat the process.

Always keep the different ingredients of a salad apart until it is time to prepare the whole.

A casserole should never be exposed to direct flame but should have an asbestos mat placed underneath it.

Fay King Doubts Love Sincerity of Romances Linking Age and Youth

By FAY KING

When we see a young couple in love we are delighted, for it is well known that all the world loves a romance.

And when they are well matched we do not debate about their romance.

We can all understand why youth and bright eyes should find each other and walk hand in hand with happy hearts.

But when we see a beautiful young Juliet clinging affectionately to an aging gallant, or a handsome young Adonis devoted to a once fair lady, it takes a lot of explaining to convince us that wealth or position has nothing to do with the romance. And even then we doubt its sincerity.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Signature

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me how I should sign my name in a hotel register, as I am starting on a traveling position and will be a week or two at each place? Usually in a business position the firm requires that I sign my first name instead of my husband's name, as Mrs. Corinne House, which I know is not correct, but in case of the hotel register, I am puzzled as to know how I should sign?

Reader.

I suggest that you sign the hotel register in the correct form . . . with your formal name, Mrs. Ebert House . . . and then, if your professional life makes the use of the first name necessary for further identification, sign that name in parentheses after it. Like this: Mrs. Ebert House (Mrs. Corinne House), Chicago.

Seating Arrangement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I want to tell you how helpful I find your space in the paper.

My daughter is expecting a young man friend as a dinner guest at our home soon. I am a bit puzzled as to just how to seat my family. My family consists of a grandmother, two grown daughters, a young man boarder and myself.

MOTHER.

Thank you!

You, as the hostess, should have the young man guest on your right. And it would be gracious and complimentary to have the grandmother seated on the other side of the man guest. Then, in order to balance the men guests, the young man boarder might sit opposite you. This would place the two daughters on the side of the table opposite the grandmother.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Except when it is a direct inheritance, the feather bed figure is the result of muscular laziness, combined with overindulgence in the good things of the table. Hard working "plumps" will arise in anger and indignation and say there are exceptions. Well, mebbe. But at a conclave of medical men not long ago, one plain spoken doc remarked that certain foods build fat and that if you don't eat 'em, you don't fatten. So the feminine dumplings must delete white bread, butter, cream, cereals and potatoes from the diet list, sustaining themselves on lean meats, eggs, green salads, fruits and vegetables that grow above ground. We suspect that some of the fat ones like their curves. Saying which, we duck to escape flying missiles.

It should be an important part of the art of living and the occupation of making oneself attractive to have some healthy, wholesome fun now and then. To play! Get all hot and happy and let your hair fall down! The mother who plays fox and geese with her "young" is a heap sight better mother than the dour-faced parent who can't unbend.

With automobiles common property like stationary washtubs, we are becoming a race of cushion sitters. The lady of the house plops herself into the family puddle-jumper and buzzes three or four short blocks to do her marketing. Not a good idea. Women should walk for the good of their feet and the good of their health generally. Walking is an excellent form of exercise, keeps the figure slimmed. It dispels a feeling of lassitude, brings freshness into the mind, chases worries out, washes the lungs, reddens the cheeks and is altogether desirable.

Heart of a Wife -:-

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

A Much-Subdued 'Vamp' Departs

All that was conservative and regular in my character subscribed to Mary's wail that she had been an "unspeakable, vulgar little girl" in her tirade against Avis Arlen. But something stronger, more primitive than training had listened to her fiery outburst, and echoed it approvingly.

I put my hand upon her hair and smoothed it. "Shall I tell you a secret, Mary?" I asked with a purposeful laugh in my voice. "I never would have had the courage to say what you did just now—but—I am very glad you had. It was exactly what that young woman needed. I imagine she'll walk quite softly while you are away."

"She'd better," Mary said with a vindictive little click of her teeth. "But what an old dear you are, Auntie Madge. You have saved me from blubbling all over the landscape. Well! I suppose we would better go in and 'speed the parting guests' or they will think I am crying my eyes out. Just a sec."

She dashed to the mirror in the hall, made several passes over her nose with an infinitesimal powder puff, came prancing back to me and drew me through the door into the living room where Lillian, Harry and Dicky were talking volubly to the guests who evidently were on the point of departure.

"Come here Horatius!" Lillian called merrily as she saw me. "I have been standing at thy right hand long enough. The bridge shows signs of going down. Come over here, and show these good people that you know how to be a hostess, even if you haven't been working at it in the last 10 minutes."

I crossed the room with Mary to the tune of the laughter which Lillian's sallies generally receive, and put out my hand to Mrs. Arlen.

"You're surely going to let us see more of you," I said cordially, making no apology whatever for my absence. "Could you not come to dinner with us the first part of next week?"

"I can answer that," Philip Veritzen said, decidedly. "I'm sorry, Millicent, but Mrs. Graham has a very important engagement with me for all her leisure time until her play is completed."

I do not think he intended the proprietary, employer-like air with which he invested the words, but I saw Dicky's fist clinch itself as if involuntarily, and I wished frantically Mrs. Veritzen would get himself and his "family" out of the house before anything else was said to arouse the jealous anger which I feel that Dicky always has in leash against this man.

That Lillian had seen that involuntarily clenched fist also, I was sure, but even if she had not she knew his jealous temper as well as I did, and came to the rescue of the situation promptly.

"I can echo that, Mrs. Arlen," she said, and her air of casualness made it impossible for Dicky to betray any annoyance at Mr. Veritzen's little ways, without making himself supremely ridiculous.

"Mrs. Graham has to be looked after as if she were a patient in care of an alienist," she said, "otherwise we should have her in bed, completely exhausted by trying to do seven things at once. Has Philip told you that she probably will be a celebrity before the year is out?"

"No, I haven't told her," Philip Veritzen interposed hurriedly. "But I should have done so. I expect next year, Millicent, we shall all be extremely proud of being upon Mrs. Graham's calling list. If the rest of her play comes up to the high standard of the first two acts, I believe that she will have a great artistic success to her credit. I, Philip Veritzen, say so."

In almost any other man the phrasing would have been bombastic and ridiculous, but coming from the lips of the greatest theatrical producer of his time, it seemed a fitting and natural thing.

"When the play is finished," he went on, "I can release her from bondage, but I wish to rush it into production without delay, provided, of course, that the last two acts come up to the promise of the first two, so, my dear Millicent, I am afraid you will have to postpone any thought of social interchange with Mrs. Graham until this stressful time is over. And now we really must be going," he said to Lillian.

"'It is written on my heart' allee samee Calais," Lillian replied, wrinkling her nose at him, and then with adieu, formal and informal, the party left, Dicky and Harry ushering them out to their car.

I noticed with a smile heroically suppressed, that Avis Arlen grasped the elder Veritzen's arm as she walked out, leaving her mother to the care of Noel. Evidently the lesson Mary had given her was bearing fruit, temporarily at least.

The door had no sooner closed upon them than William put on a phonograph record again and skimmed into a dance with Marion.

Lillian looked over at Mary with a little grin.

"Congratulations!" she said. "I don't know just what you did to the yammering yearner, but it must have been plenty judging from the way she was crouching in her corner ever since she scuttled back in here. That ought to be your one good Girl Scout deed for the day, but I have another job for you. Dance a while longer, if you want to, but see that you all get to bed not later than 11, and tell the gentlemen of the party 'good night' for us."

She turned to me and put her hand through my arm.

"Come on, old dear," she said, "you can't stall any longer. We must finish that third act."

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The excellent speaking voice of Von Hindenburg. Not the gruff and guttural sounds we had somehow expected . . . The vocal superiority of a real Heidelberg students' chorus to Broadway's representation of it in musical comedy.

The peculiar insistence of John Charles Thomas upon songs not only hackneyed, but offering little test to his vocal powers . . . The blend of the pagan riot in Times Square with a hymnal carillon on Riverside drive. The pagan revelry practically drowning out the carillon . . . Denver's celebration was just the reverse, microphonically. There church chimes outvolumed the razzle-dazzlers. . . . The frequently-erring manuscript reading of Olin Downes. . . . The uncanny skill of studio mechanicians in following the New Year's clock across the continent. The uncanny sameness of the dance bands in their jazz technique as well as in the selections given to the air.

The strange note of jazz issuing from the hitherto classically-inviolate Roxy; furthermore jazz that had been so laboriously worked over that the notes had little resemblance to the original tunes . . . The thought that the only Negro bands of Harlem can make jazzy obscurity of current tunes effective.

They wonder how much longer the moaning baritones will be up in the front of the radio pack . . . The ease with which the moaning baritones can be imitated. You can do it yourself and rely only upon the phrase "la-da-de-da" . . . The tedious description of the Southern California-Tulane game. McNamee would have done a much better job, even though his gaze might have rested too lingeringly upon the Pasadena sunset . . . The curious patronizing of Tulane by the announcers: "Don't let anybody tell you these southerners can't fight." Who said they couldn't?

The most brilliant opera broadcast yet to be heard on the radio—the performance of "La Boheme" from the Metropolitan. Superb melody expressed by the best voices in the operatic kingdom and transmitted without a single mechanical flaw . . . The snap which Ernie Smith gives to a football broadcast. The difficulty he had identifying the players in the San Francisco mud . . . The dramatic feeling which Schumann-Heink imparts to "Heilige Nacht." . . . The repetitious gabbing of so-called economic experts, all trying to put their fingers on the cause of the depression, all skirting around the Versailles treaty as a dog skirts around a cat. . . The increase in the number of skillful pianists on the air. . . The greatest crowd noise originating from a room on New Year's Eve—that from the Mount Royal Hotel, Montreal. . . The pride with which Maj. Bowes announces his programs. . . The ever-ingratiating accents of Walter Damrosch.

Bradford Official Arrested Third Time

BRADFORD, Pa., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Webster G. Drew, ousted City Treasurer, is a prisoner in the McKean County Jail. For the third time within a few months, Drew was arrested yesterday on charges involving city funds.

His latest arrest followed informations filed by City Solicitor F. F. Nash accusing Drew of misapplication of city funds amounting to $61,936.24.

Dairymen Protest Low Milk Prices

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 8.—About 150 dairymen representing six locals of the Dairymens Co-operative Sales Agency of Pittsburgh, meeting at Linden last night, protested the low price they are receiving for milk. They named R. B. McNary, of Thomas, to arrange for a conference of the entire association of 152 locals.

Pittsburgh Auditor Loses State Post

Dismissal of James H. Stoughton of Pittsburgh, traveling auditor of the State Highway Department, was announced yesterday at the Governor's office in Harrisburg. Stoughton was one of eight fired by the Governor. George A. McLaughlin, also of Pittsburgh, was one of 34 Pennsylvanians appointed members of the State Highway Patrol.

WE NOW PRESENT

By Darrell V. Martin
Radio Editor

Darrell V. Martin

BUDDY ROGERS, really not a bad fellow, advised us before leaving the city last night that he would do his first NBC broadcast Friday night, January 22 with Leonard Joy's Chocolateer Orchestra over KDKA. . . . Paul Whiteman and his Pontiac sponsors are cooking up a talent expedition in 25 American cities to "discover" new radio stars. . . . Gene and Glenn may succeed Amos 'n' Andy when the toothpaste boys take a proposed rest sometime this year. . . . and there's a story too that Gene and Glenn may be offered on the red network (WCAE) at 7 o'clock each evening soon by the chewing gum sponsors of "Myrt and Marge." It seems there's method to WTAM's madness in changing the boys' broadcast time from 7 o'clock to 6:15 daily except Sunday. . . .

Question a Day:

Is there a third party in Riggs and Moke" and how much do they make?—Miss Anne A. Broughton, Pa.

Answer—"Betty" is played by one of the boys, Tom Riggs to be exact. As a salary, we don't know exactly but somewhere close to $150 a week, not counting their social engagements which bring them $25 an appearance. The boys turned down an offer to do sustaining programs over CBS last year.

Studio Lights

Tommy Brown, of "Real Folks;" Baby Rose Marie, and Alfred Corn, who plays "Sammy" in "The Goldbergs," are to face Klieg lights soon. . . .

Blaine Moke, of "Riggs and Moke," eats neither candy, cake nor ice cream. . . . and plays a guitar that no one borrows, because he's lefthanded, which makes the strings backward for a righthanded player. . . .

Station WGBS, in New York, becomes Station WINS on January 15 . . . . the INS for International News Service. . . .

No chance of "Moonshine and Honeysuckle" going anywhere but WEAF studios for a long, long time. . . . Lulu Vollmer, author of the popular series, has produced another Broadway success, "Sentinels," and that means more of New York than ever. . . .

Fritz Kreisler, violinist, and Sergei Rachmaninoff, pianist-composer, who gave in to signing an NBC booking contract yesterday, are said to have fixed their prices for a radio appearance . . . let's see, $30,000 might tempt them individually . . .

How the Mahatma Gandhi was seized while asleep and rushed through the dark streets of Bombay to jail, at the order of the British government, is to be portrayed on WJAS at 8:30 tonight during the News Drama. . . . Another scene is to show the overthrow of prohibition in Finland, contrasted with a scene in a New York speakeasy. . . .

"Hack" Wilson, NBC's man of a thousand voices, has changed his name to "Ward" Wilson on the air because so many kids confused him with the baseball player and wrote in for autographs, baseballs and advice on how to boost the batting average. . . .

Jewel Ens was an interested spectator at last night's broadcast of the Yellow Jackets' hockey game. . . . Tory Gregg, injured captain, who gave a vivid description of the plays along with Jack Keough and Carl W. Shatto, didn't show a trace of microphobia. . . . went at the business as though he had been doing it as long as Lou Kaufman. . . .

Kay Kyser moves into the Gibson Hotel, Cincinnati, today and broadcasts tonight and every night at 12:30 a. m. over WLW. . . .

Paul J. Miller, now at WWVA, threatens to turn radio columnist on a Wheeling paper. . . .

Today's Tid Bit:

There's some dispute about the way "Sisters of the Skillet" used Rudy Vallee's greeting on the WCAE dedicatory program the other night. If our auditory powers are correct, the Sisters said: "I owe, everybody" and not "Heigh-ho."

ALL IN A DAY

By MARK HELLINGER

"IN SETTING the scene for this yarn," writes T. J. A., a Detroit contributor, "you can choose as your locale any town in the U. S. A. that has a furniture factory in it. If you want to stick to the truth, however—which I doubt very much upon occasion—you'll place the action in Grand Rapids, Mich. Because that's where the story actually took place.

"Call the man Johnson. As a boy, he had to pass furniture factory after furniture factory on his way to school. The smell of fresh cut lumber was always in his nostrils; the whirring of saws was always in his ears. There was nothing else to live for; nothing else to talk about. It was a case of furniture—morning, noon and night.

"When he grew old enough, he became a cabinet maker, exactly as his people had always been before him. He married one of the home town girls and furnished his home right out of stock. Like his neighbors and friends, he lived a placid, simple life. He saw thousands of feet of lumber shipped in and carloads of furniture shipped out.

"Thus the years roll by in similar fashion, and we meet Mr. Johnson on his 50th birthday. As a surprise for his dutiful wife, he has done something that everybody in Grand Rapids wants to do, but not too many can afford. He had decided upon a trip to Europe.

"Finally came the big day, and Mr. and Mrs. Johnson sailed for the land of their dreams. With his cap and his camera, Mr. Johnson walked around that boat as though he was determined to wear out the decks.

"Two weeks later we find them in Europe. Paris to be exact. Both Mr. and Mrs. Johnson have done so much sightseeing and rushing about that they are completely exhausted.

"Just as the tired man was getting in a sweet dream about Grand Rapids, in came his wife with tremendous news. She had seen some bargains! Furniture bargains. And she insisted that he come out with her immediately and look at them.

"'Henry,' she cried excitedly, 'you know that I've wanted decent stuff in our home ever since we were married. Oh, I'm not exactly complaining about our furniture. I know it's comfortable and nice and all that. But —well, you know what I mean. It's not too stylish.'

"Her husband blinked his eyes.

"'It's always been stylish enough for me,' he returned. 'After me being in that business all my life, are you going to tell me what's what in the furniture line?'

"'Oh, Henry darling,' she murmured, 'I didn't mean it that way. You know that I love our home and everything in it. But these things are really so beautiful. Genuine Queen Anne and Louis XIV pieces. They're genuine antiques—and so very hard to find.

"'It would mean so very much to me if we had a few pieces like that in our home. I think the neighbors would simply die. Can you picture Mrs. Milton's face if she walked into our living room and saw those things? Or that catty Mrs. Franks?

"'Please, Henry dearest, come along with me and look at those things. That's all I ask.'

"'Martha,' he asserted, 'this is your party. I've never denied you anything that was within our means and I'm not going to start now. I'm too doggone tired to move myself, but you go right ahead. If your heart's set on having that furniture, then buy it. And I hope it makes you very happy.'

"As a result of that generous gesture, Mrs. Johnson bought four pieces for the sum of $2,000. Not a great deal for such antiques, but, as the wife had pointed out, they were genuine bargains.

"'I know it was a big expense, Henry,' she said, 'but the satisfaction we'll derive from those things will more than make up for it. I'm having them crated and they're to be shipped out tonight. By the time we get back to Grand Rapids, the furniture will all be there. And what a thrill that is going to be!'

"Some three weeks later the Johnsons were back in the home town once again. Mrs. Johnson just couldn't wait. She leaped for the phone and urged several of her friends and neighbors to come right over and help her unpack her new antique furniture. And how she enjoyed saying it!

"Everything went perfectly. There were exclamations of praise and envy from all the women as each piece was unpacked. Mrs. Johnson was in her glory, and her husband wasn't doing badly, either. It was just too grand.

"Just too grand, that is, until a neighbor's little boy, who never wanted to miss a trick, crawled beneath the precious furniture and called everybody's attention to a small stamp in an obscure corner. The stamp bore this very simple notation:

"'Made in Grand Rapids, U. S. A.'" . . .

Kline's 'Fade-Out' as Future Candidate Seen

By MARK SHIELDS

It is doubtful if Mayor Charles H. Kline, no matter what the outcome of the difficulties he now faces in the courts, again will be a candidate for office in Pittsburgh or Allegheny County.

Mark Shields

That interpretation is general in political circles as a result of the Mayor's request for a change of venue in the trial of charges of misconduct in office. He declares that the community has been prejudiced against him through various avenues of publicity.

This is a great change from a short year ago, when the Mayor rather boastfully observed the hold he said he had on the people of his city. I remember an incident in Harrisburg last winter when the bill for two additional judges for Allegheny County Common Pleas Court was before the House for final vote. The Mayor lobbied the members, even winning to his side Darlington Hoopes, the Socialist member from Berks County.

When the roll call started the Mayor sat at the desk of one of the Allegheny County members and checked the ayes and nays. Near the end of the list it was apparent that the bill would pass with a safe majority, despite opposition from many civic groups in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County, as well as some members of the bench and bar. Turning to me with a smile of complacent satisfaction, the Mayor said:

"Well, it looks as though the old boy is as good down here as he is at home."

* * *

Once He Swayed Many, Doubts Picking 12 Here

Now the Mayor feels that he has been so diatribed and attacked that he could not assuredly pick 12 persons here at home who would consider his case fairly on the evidence to be presented by the District Attorney.

In political circles, it is argued, that if the Mayor is unwilling to submit that small part of his record which can come under legal question to 12 of his fellow citizens, then he would hesitate to submit to all the electors of the city that larger portion of his record which could come under political attack in a campaign.

In court the rules of evidence confine attack—at least in theory, and usually in practice.

In political campaigns opponents are bound by no rules, frequently not even by the rules of good taste.

Pinchot Near Decision On Walling's Successor

Gov. Pinchot is reported near a decision on a successor to the late Justice Walling on the Supreme Court. Two men are understood to be in the front of the Governor's mind, Attorney General William A. Schnader and Public Service Commissioner George Woodruff, who was attorney general in the first Pinchot administration.

For some time Schnader has stood within the shadow of the high court. At each vacancy his name has been mentioned, but upon every occasion there was unfinished business in the state's legal department which prevented his promotion. He served Gov. Fisher, as he did Pinchot in the first administration, as Special Deputy Attorney General and was the backbone of the Department of Justice. Near the end of the Fisher term, when Cyrus E. Woods resigned as Attorney General, Schnader took his place and was continued by Pinchot.

His attainments as a lawyer are of the highest, though his opinion that the Talbot bill passed at the recent special session of the Legislature is unconstitutional has been challenged. He has been publicly praised by the Supreme Court for his presentation of mooted points, especially his defense of the legal issues involved in the administrative code when it was adopted, in 1923.

* * *

Woodruff Governor's Choice as Drew's Named

Woodruff has been a Pinchot companion since the early Washington days, when both were in federal service. He was the Governor's choice when Justice James H. Drew was appointed last year.

Woodruff himself was confident he would get the appointment, but influences within the Governor's closest circle of advisers prevailed, and Woodruff was only partially consoled by a nomination to the Public Service Commission, which was not confirmed by the Senate.

If the Governor needs the legal advice of Schnader in another special session, and if the decision is made to select a justice at once, the Attorney General again will be a victim of necessity. If he is the Governor's choice the appointment may be delayed, as the Attorney General is most familiar with the Talbot bill, and is contesting its constitutionality.

Policeman Enraged by Quick Release of Suspect In Murder Case

CHAPTER II.

Daisy Beaumont, her 14-karat white-gold hair tied up in a towel and a dainty little apron tied about her waist, was busy dusting off the dresser. Her friend and roommate, Kiki Edwards, dark of hair and eyes, was sitting comfortably in an overstuffed red plush chair, lazily puffing a cigaret. Daisy was softly humming to herself.

"Well, it beats me," sighed Kiki, throwing one silk-mesh clad leg over the other. "Here you are with all the breaks. Working for a big shot and doin' your own housework. How come?"

Daisy stopped at her task, placed her hands on her hips and grinned.

"Say, Kid," she began, "I didn't work that way. I'm on the up and up. I'm Belmonte's private secretary and nothin' more. He gives me thirty a week and feeds me now and then. I took a bum rap once—and do you know what?"

She paused and walked over to Kiki. The other raised a pair of thin, plucked eyebrows.

"You know what I got wised to today? I found out a copper sprung me. Can you imagine it—a copper! The toughest baby in the town—Fightin' Jim Fitzpatrick."

"Blow me down," chirped Kiki, visibly interested and quickly crunching out her cigaret.

"It's mud to me. This shyster mouthpiece, Michaels, put me hep. Told me right after Fitzpatrick nabbed Belmonte. I was there, you know. But Fitz didn't know me and I never guessed. It was a white trick for a copper—don't you think?"

She began to hum again and continued her work, vigorously rubbing the polished surface of the mirror.

"H-m-m-m," grunted Kiki. "Looks bad to me."

"Whatta you mean, bad? Didn't I take a wrong fall? Didn't they frame me up after they tried to shake me down?"

"Yeah—says you. But there's somethin' clammy about it. That copper'll try to use you some day—and you've walked right into the spot where you'll be most useful. You'll make a fine stool—"

"Say! A job's a job to me. I don't squeal on nobody. Belmonte may be in rackets, but I don't know nothin' about it. I do my work and get my pay—and I don't chisel around. Not that I couldn't."

And Daisy winked mischievously.

* * *

Chief of Police George Burton was entertaining a few of his choicest friends. Two exciting bridge games were in progress; a beautiful young woman with no back to her dress, whose name was in Broadway lights, was improvising at the piano; the butler was busy passing a tray of cocktails; the chief himself, surrounded by several admiring women, was spouting in full eruption on the subject of crime and criminals.

"Since I accepted this appointment," he was saying, "I have done away with brutal police methods. There is no more third degree in the department. You must handle these fellows humanely, apply a little psychology on them, and treat them like men, not manhandle them. It's only when they are abused that they turn into copper-killers—"

The butler sidled up to him and touched his arm.

"The telephone, sir—they say

Synopsis

Jim Fitzpatrick, police captain, noted for his honesty and fighting spirit, knowing that Daisy was framed, succeeds in having her freed. When four racketeers are found murdered, Fitzpatrick suspects Guiseppe Belmonte, overlord of a huge vice ring. Belmonte is arrested. The police discover that Daisy is employed by Belmonte. The vice leader's attorney immediately gets busy to have him freed.

FUNERALS PART WOMEN FLIERS

HARRISBURG, Jan. 8.—Death today mapped out separate last journeys for the two society women fliers wrecked in the Tuscarora state forest while on an air trip they hoped would carry them to South America and the conquest of new air records.

The bodies of Mrs. Ruth Stewart, 26, St. Louis, and Mrs. Debbie Stanford, 28, Indianapolis, were in an undertaking parlor here today.

Mr. and Mrs. William Woerner, parents of Mrs. Stewart, prepared to leave with their daughter's body for St. Louis on the arrival of A. W. Stewart, the flier's husband.

It had not been definitely decided whether Mrs. Stanford would be burried in Indianapolis, where her husband lives, or in Guelph, Ontario, home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Moses Tudge.

Mrs. Woerner disclosed her daughter at first was reluctant to hop off on the flight on which they crashed in the rain and fog in the region known as "The Graveyard of Aviation," in Pennsylvania's mountains.

Byers Art Exhibit Shows Taste

By PENELOPE REDD

The A. M. Byers collection of paintings, long a mysterious treasure, has been brought forth for the public's pleasure in an exhibition which will be on view at the Carnegie Institute through March 15.

Penelope Redd

Great are the painters of the 55 canvases.

The giants of the Flemish and Dutch schools, Rubens, Hals, Van Dyck, Rembrandt, Ruisdael and Maes, establish an atmosphere of virility that is a remote cry from the usual gentleman's collection in the Pittsburgh of Mr. Byers' day.

The career of Mr. Byers, who died in 1900, runs parallel with the industrial development of Pittsburgh. He was born in nearby Mercer County in 1827.

In 1828, H. S. Spang & Son built the Etna Iron Works, in which the first iron tubings hereabouts were manufactured. The "great western town" of Pittsburgh then had some 7,000 inhabitants.

When Mr. Byers came to Pittsburgh in 1858 as a partner in the Spang Chalfant Company, the city's population had grown with industrial success to around 125,000.

Mr. Byers' prominence in the industrial life progressed steadily. Never concerned with proclaiming his interests to the world at large, he is not mentioned as a contributor to the rousing art exhibition of 1879.

Note the lesson in this exhibition. The first citizens proudly lent from their collections. Italian "masters," such as Mazzolini, Tomini, Serritelli and Conti, and German genre paintings by the widely popular Toby Rosenthal, Achenbach and Geshelschep. Where are these canvases and where do these painters stand in the world of art today?

Mr. Byers, however, was not influenced by current fashions in art. When he began to collect, he evidently followed his own taste, which was of a highly superior order.

Thus he selected for his own enjoyment, paintings such as Rembrandt's portrait of Saskia, Gainsborough's landscape with peasants, Reynolds' portrait of his good friend, David Garrick; Turner's enchanted view of Heidelberg, Corot's mystic landscape with a figure in a boat, and Millet's rare child portrait.

Every one of these represents the painter at the height of his power, in a subject invested with personal enthusiasm.

Consequently, Mr. Byers' paintings impress beyond the magnificence of the painters' reputations.

As one passes about the exhibition, a conviction of the owner's sensitive regard for these paintings grows. It is singular to find so composite a creation as a collection of paintings covering 300 years insistently presenting the personality of their owner.

Even the presence of a few sentimental pictures indicates a compromise with some other person's taste, probably considered by reason of affection.

A list of the portraits by painters of Georgian England, of the landscapes by the French painters of the Barbizon Group of 1830, or of the French Romanticists of the '60s would convey little of the authentic quality of the Byers collection.

The unifying element of calm must have given full measure of peaceful beauty to the creator of the collection, after the clangor of his busy days.

Police Rush Injured Victim To Hospital; 3 Stitches Needed to Close Wound

Slugged by a robber, Miss Pearl Barrett, 43, of 1300 Success street, clerk in a P. H. Butler grocery at 1335 Sheffield street, lay unconscious on the floor while the robber rifled the cash register. She recovered consciousness as he fled.

Police sent Miss Barrett to the Allegheny General Hospital, where three stitches were placed in a wound in her head.

Miss Barrett told police as she placed a miscellaneous lot of groceries on the counter she dropped her pencil. When she stooped to pick it up the robber struck her on the head. She said he had loitered near the store for several mornings.

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—Philanthropy of Julius Rosenwald, buried simply yesterday, will live on.

3 PITTSBURGH PLANES DOWN

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 8—Pittsburgh's flying delegation to the fourth annual all-American air races here was trying to dig itself out from under a blanket of "heavy" weather which has covered practically the whole of the East above the Carolinas for the past three days.

Only two of the five Pittsburgh ships entered in this year's air classic have been able to get through. They came in yesterday, piloted by Jack Morris and Carl Voelter. With Morris, Rodgers Field pilot, was Mrs. Katherine Edwards, sister of the famous "war bird," Col. William E. Thaw, and owner of the plane flown here by Morris.

Others reported en route from Pittsburgh include Miss Helen McCloskey, Rodgers Field; Edward Kitzmiller, Bettis, and Robert Dake, Bettis. Dake is scheduled to officiate as starter for the races, and Col. Harry C. Frye, Jr., Pittsburgh, who motored here, will act as scorer.

George Finally Gets Rebuke for Standing in Boat

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Washington Crossing the Delaware has been dropped from the Metropolitan Museum of Art for non-payment of dues.

George is now down in the cellar, while Munsey's mummies are acting as ushers in the reception room.

The venerable gentlemen who run the Metropolitan claim that Washington commuting the Delaware is bad for posterity.

It will teach future generations to stand up in a rowboat.

The fact that the painting is patriotic, thrilling and inspiring means nothing to our contemporaries. We have now discarded everything relating to George, including his advice on foreign cul-de-sacs.

Andrew Jackson is doing better in presidential memories.

Three ex-candidates will attend the basket party named in his honor.

Andrew will not be there. And probably you could trace Andy's success to the fact that he never attended a Jackson Day dinner.

The two boys previously had described in detail how they went to the log house of James White, 58, during darkness and set the building afire after fastening the doors and windows. They said they were revengeful against White who had beaten Ramer in a fight.

Shortly before they were scheduled to be arraigned this morning, the youths told the Sheriff and Prosecutor Harry M. Miller the entire story was a hoax.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. J. M. Edwards for 20 years has relieved scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are gentle but sure on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no good feeling all out of sorts, or active bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Scientifically Purer..

Something every smoker wants to know!

● Absolutely pure . . . that's what you expect in the things you eat and drink . . . and in the cigarettes you smoke.

"Chesterfields are as pure as the water you drink," a noted scientist writes. There's no way to make a purer cigarette.

Starting with tobaccos . . . the ripest, finest, purest leaf that grows is selected for Chesterfields. Mild to start with . . . Cross-Blending makes it milder still. Then it's wrapped in paper that is so pure it burns without any taste or odor.

The phrase "Scientifically Purer" is entirely justified. By our use of a highly scientific process which was worked out by Dr. Paul Gross, the Head Chemist of our Research Department, Chesterfield reaches a state of purity unmatched, to our knowledge, by any other cigarette.

In addition, scientists check every ingredient, every method. Even the factory air is washed, and changed every 4½ minutes. More purity!

Notice, too, the clean, white, attractive package . . . moisture-proof. Chesterfields come to you as good and as pure as they're made. Good . . . they've got to be good! Change to Chesterfields and see.

NEED OF PUBLIC FUNDS SEEN FOR RELIEF

Welfare Expenditures Much Higher Than Receipts; Final Meeting Set

Pointing out that more than 400 new and reopened cases were reported yesterday by the Family Welfare Association, an increase of 100 cases per day over the daily average for last week, leaders in the campaign of the Welfare Fund and Allegheny County Emergency Association today indicated the necessity of supplementing present resources from public funds.

Following a gain of $19,000, the fund total today stood at $5,481,619, including conditional offers of $801,000, officials said. The amount sought in the drive is $5,981,184 for unemployment relief.

On the basis of actual expenditures for November and December, according to Wilbur F. Maxwell, executive secretary of the Welfare Fund, the 1932 budget will be more than $7,000,000. At present, he pointed out, only $4,680,000 can be counted on from the campaign.

The final report meeting of all drive workers will be held next Thursday in the William Penn Hotel. A list of recent contributors follows:

Mrs. Zerby

Mrs. Zerby, who died yesterday, was a native of McKeesport. She was a member of Forest Hills Presbyterian Church. She had been ill since July 1, 1930.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Zerby is survived by a sister, Mrs. E. R. Edwards, and a brother, Ward F. Briggs, both of East McKeesport.

COUNTY BUDGET CUT $142,000

With their own office and the Department of Public Works the only remaining budgets where large cuts may be made, the County Commissioners have succeeded in lopping only $142,000 from the 1932 requests.

Any drastic curtailment of the county's expenses must come from the payroll. County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern advised each of the 18 department heads appearing at yesterday's session that the Commissioners expect cooperation from them in adjustment of salaries when the salary board meetings are held. He said:

"We must cut at every possible point to keep the budget within the income this year."

Lancasters Leave Tropics When Bill Accepts Uncle's Offer

CHAPTER XVIII

Nevis said steadily, knowing that she could tell Bill the one thing that would influence him:

"I'm not going to make any more decisions. I won't. I don't want to. I want it to be your way. I made a mistake originally in trying to run things. It can't be done. I won't pull against you. You're the head of the family," said Nevis, smiling to herself in the darkness, "and you're the one to decide."

There's New York, he told her after a minute. That's Walter's way. It means—oh, I don't know—a year. That's my guess. There would be more of course, later. But we couldn't live on the Island at first, not on the way we did live. I wouldn't want to. I would have to be on the job you know. It would mean a flat and a part time maid and no car for a while.

But then there's Sam's offer, she said oddly.

It would mean, he told her, "feast today and famine tomorrow. Just as it meant before. It would mean Westlynne again, if you wanted to go back. And the old crowd. Golf and parties and pretty clothes and cars and a darned good time. The same kind of time we had before—with reservations."

She said quietly:

"I know. We'd make the reservations now. No debt. No living beyond our means. No outside interests. No looking over fences. No—Olives," she laughed and then added very steadily "and no Harry Cutters. But would we be able to stick to those reservations, Bill? I mean . . . could we?" I think we could. Mind you, I'm not trying to influence you. And I only say I think we could. I don't know. It's so natural, easy to drift with the tide.

OLD PLACE ALLURING

She was silent. Westlynne and a big lawn and old trees and Della's for cocktails and lovely frocks and jumping into a car and going places and doing things. It was very alluring. More alluring in many ways than staying on here, building up a little circle trying to beat the climate, trying to forget homesickness, more alluring, too, perhaps, than the flat in town, the part-time maid and losing all your old friends except for people like Della because Bill's work wouldn't permit him to run out on the Island every two minutes and his income at first wouldn't permit keeping up with the gang, entertaining in a like manner. Yet had the gang really been friends? Della had been. Mort's people generally. A certain sleepy, easy hospitality to one another. Not many of the Westlynnites had ambitions, or thought they had, beyond their own boundaries. Nevis was not sure anywhere, she thought.

A week's Bill and she knew he would say. Burton Westcott and a lot of modern architects, as per usual. So there would be houses and English prams and a great sunny playroom in Westlynne. So she wouldn't have all the care and the worrying and the fuss. So that she might grow, after a time, like most Westlynne mothers, who saw their babies three times a day, smiling and clean in the arms of a uniformed nurse. Isn't she darling? Nurse, are you sure he hasn't a cold? No. That's good. I thought he looked sick. Kiss me, darling. I have to run.

But Bill would think it easier for her. No, she wouldn't tell him until long after everything was decided.

KEEPS SECRET

He'd pack New York one way or another, if he knew. He wouldn't dream of her having the baby down here, of bringing it through the difficult first years in the climate without proper food, without proper milk, without proper climatic changes.

Bill said:

Nevis, when we came down here it was for a purpose. Your purpose. What do you think about it now?"

She answered hotly:

I think we could have worked it out right where we were. That's why it doesn't matter to me if we stay here or go home, if you go in with Uncle Walter or with Mr. Burton. That's why it doesn't matter if it's a shack on stilts or an uptown flat or a Queen Anne cottage on Long Island. Because externals don't really matter, Bill. It's what you do with them that counts. Your control of everything. Do you see?"

He said slowly:

I get you. We fall away, don't we. Because we were afraid the merry-go-round had sped up on us. But it didn't do any good. It almost ruined Dell, even here. And I don't attach your use," said Bill, and I guess it isn't. You become either. You can't get away from yourself and your habits and impulses and temptations. He went on as serious as he had ever been in his whole life long. "either whether you try going primitive and on your own, as a thing like this or whether you take a shot at rubbing around with the gayest bunch on the island. Or back home. Hammocks and a porch and the town your family settled don't make any difference either. It's all the same. You've got the same problems, you have all the elements of misunderstanding wherever you go. Other people's wives. Other people's husbands. Keeping up with the next door neighbors. Jealousy. Lack of proportion. Lost sense of values. It's the same all over. You can't beat it by pulling up stakes and going somewhere else, can you? You can only beat it wherever you find it by something in yourself. I think we've got that something," he said. He said a moment later: "I love you, Nevis. You love me. That's enough to go on, no matter where we are, isn't it? I mean as long as we remember it always."

FOR HIM TO DECIDE

She was crying a very little. The tears ran down her face unchecked and left it without distortion. She said with a sob of pure happiness:

That's what I think. I've learned it. I didn't know you'd learned it too. It means everything to me. It makes all the difference. You are seeing things as I've come to see them."

He said, hitching his chair close to hers, putting his arm around her:

Let it go at that. Whatever we decide then we'll have problems to meet. We'll get bored with each other and life now and then. We'll fight like other people. We'll kiss and make up. We'll jog along. Is it all right with you, really, whatever I decide to do?"

She answered: "You know it is. I'll be happy anywhere in any circumstance. You see, we'll make our own circumstances pretty darned regardless. I suppose a lot of women think that if externals were different they'd be happy and would make a success of their marriages. I mean, if you live in the Bronx you think Park avenue would make the difference; if you live on Park avenue you take a notion that life in the jungle would straighten things out. You know what I mean. It's a lot of blah anyway. You can't work it out that way. You have to work it out wherever you are."

He said:

Tell me, what a peach you are!" inadequately enough. He got to his feet and stood over her as she lay back in the sofa chair and looked up at him. He put his hands out and she rose and took them and he pulled her to her feet and into his arms.

Is it really up to me?" he asked again.

Yes. I don't want you to do anything but pack the work you'll be happy in and which will get you the farthest ahead," she told him.

CONSIDERS OFFERS

He said: "I'll sleep on it. I've got to think it out," he admitted.

Of course you have," she said confidently.

He had already made up his mind to one thing. He wouldn't stay in the Tropics and he wouldn't go back to Pennsylvania. The tropics were too hard on Nevis, no matter what she might say, no matter how much their present situation might clash in the way of altered living conditions. And he didn't want to go into his father's business. He knew his father and his uncle. Young men, comparatively speaking. Set in their ways. He couldn't change them or the business and he would want to do so. It would mean a desk his name on the door of an office and the deference foolishly due him as son and nephew of president and vice president. It would mean, after his father's death and that of his uncle, that he and his cousin would come into the concern. And they had never been friends. Moreover, he knew his home town. He and Nevis would be as gay as they had been in Westlynne in a carbon copy manner. It would be expected of them. No, that was out. Porto Rico was out. There remained then a certain $6,000 a year and a block of stock and a chance of by very hard work making himself into something resembling a high-powered and high-salaried executive and perhaps putting a few private reforms into the business when the opportunity offered—or going back with Burton and picking up the gilt threads where he had dropped them.

DECISION APPROVED

At the end of the week he said to Nevis gravely:

"If it's all right with you, I'll take Uncle Walter's second offer and we'll go back to town. Sort of like to hunt for flats again?" he asked her, smiling.

She said, radiant:

"Whatever you had decided was good enough for me. But you've decided the thing I thought was just a little better. You'll have to work hard," she told him seriously, "and it won't be roses and roadhouses all the way. And we'll have to make new friends. We'll keep the ones that really counted. Della and Mort . . . you know, and Sam and Daisy. The others won't be bothered with us after a while. We can't make the effort to throw parties and buy up speakeasies. We can't afford to, for one thing."

That day he told Walter Mason and Hayes of his decision and cabled to Sam.

They stayed on in Porto Rico until one of the bachelors, almost overcome by the good turn in his fortune, could be trained to take temporarily, Bill's place. But they were home in time for Christmas.

Nevis said to herself, being very sure now, "I won't tell him . . . till we get home. Until we are certain. I don't want him influenced . . . rushing off to Sam, feeling that he had to make money quickly, for our sake. He wants things this way or he wouldn't have decided it as he did. I'm not going to let him feel he will ever regret it, until everything's settled."

Aunt Margaret had found them an apartment. It was on the West Side, and therefore not, momentarily, in the mode. But it was attractive, it had sun and air and there was an extra room. "I must have a guest room," Nevis told her, as things having been arranged, she said goodby to the Masons at the boat.

Della, invaluable as usual, had seen to the furniture that was stored, and Nevis' mother came down to be with Margaret Mason in New York a week or so before Nevis and Bill landed. And so, getting off the boat at Brooklyn, they were to go directly home.

A HAPPY CHRISTMAS

The night before they docked they lay off Fort Hamilton and watched the lights of Staten Island and Bay Ridge. The passengers grumbled at reaching the Narrows too late in the evening to dock. But Nevis, stretched out in a steamer chair, held Bill's hand tightly. She said: "Home tomorrow, Bill. I'm going to have the time of my life fixing up the flat and keeping a budget book. Don't laugh. I'm going to, really. Oh," she said, cuddling down into her coat collar, "isn't it cold—and isn't it grand?"

"Swell," agreed Bill, contentedly.

And a day or two later it was Christmas, with the Masons there and Della and Mort running in and Daisy and Sam coming, calling and Nevis' mother to share it with them. And when the guests had gone and her mother was safely tucked in the guest room and Bill, yawning happily, was putting out lights and talking of the work he would be inducted into on the morrow, Nevis took his hand and dragged him over to the tree. She said, looking up at the great colored globes and the tinted lights: "Bill, I've another present for you."

"Spendthrift! As if the ties and things weren't enough."

"Of course they weren't! But we hadn't much time for shopping down there and we've only been home three days."

He slipped his big hand under her chin and bent to her eager, offered lips. He asked, laughing:

"It isn't the dreaded budget book, is it?"

"No," said Nevis, "but it's the reason for the 'budget book,' after all."

And then she told him.

The End.

Eggs Important Food for Growth and Development

This "Protective Food," Rich in Proteins, Fats, Vitamins and Minerals, Is a Diet Necessity

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Former Health Commissioner of New York City, United States Senator From New York.

A food authority in a recent article about eggs, described them as "the cement that holds together the castles of cookery." That is good!

Eggs are valuable because of the many ways in which they can be utilized and because of their high food value. Since the egg furnishes all the nutrition necessary for the development of the chick, it can be easily understood why this food is important for growth and development.

The egg is made up of about 75 per cent water, 13 per cent protein and 12 per cent fat. Though carbohydrates are not found in the egg, its protein, mineral and vitamin content easily make up for this deficiency. An egg contains one-third yolk and two-thirds white. Though the white of the egg is not as nutritive as the yolk, it must not be neglected, because it contains many important elements.

GOOD FOR CHILDREN

As I have suggested, eggs contain important proteins, easily digested fats, valuable vitamins and minerals. For the growing child they are a valuable food and, like milk, they supply most of the elements that are necessary for proper growth and development.

Recently our ideas about infant feeding have changed. For instance, eggs are given to infants as early as the sixth month with remarkable success. When used for baby food, eggs should be coddled, because in this form they are most easily digested.

When eggs are not fresh and are not properly prepared they have an unpleasant taste and are difficult to digest. Because of this, children often acquire a dislike for eggs.

Be sure that the eggs you purchase are fresh. The surface of the egg should not be shiny. When the egg is held to a light, it should be full. A bad egg is dark colored, does not transmit the light clearly, and has a large air chamber.

GIVEN TO CONVALESCENTS

There are many ways of preparing eggs, depending upon individual taste. Contrary to an old fashioned idea, raw eggs are difficult to digest and hard boiled eggs are as easily digested as soft boiled eggs. Scrambled and fried eggs are believed to be more difficult to digest, but the difference is slight. Cooking produces certain changes in the egg which make their digestion easier.

Adults and children convalescing from serious operations are often given a diet of milk and eggs. Eggs, next to milk, are considered the most important food for growth and repair of the body. Due to their rich content of vitamins, they are often spoken of as a "protective food." Such foods aid in preventing colds, infections and certain constitutional diseases. Eggs contain iron in liberal amounts and consequently have a tonic effect.

Fortunately eggs may be purchased at any time of the year. No diet is complete without them. They should be a part of the daily food supply of young and old.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(Copyright, 1932, Daily Mirror, Inc.)

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Every time I see a billposter of "Frankenstein" I giggle thinking of the simile. As surprised and startled as a newspaper editor who looks up the word "Monster" in the dictionary for the first time. . . . So Judge Dunn of Maryland considers ladies of the stage "women of more or less easy virtue." . . . Really? . . . I could name Judge Dunn five judges of more or less easy virtue to every actress he can name. . . . Wonder whatever became of Chalet anyway? . . . Suite! The traffic congestion in town is caused by all those judges running for trains. . . . That Ripley plan to back that book still fascinates me. . . . The one about beating horse races every time. . . . Wonder if he has taken that suggestion to name the book "Horse-Sense." . . . Horse-sense because you never hear of a horse betting on a human. Being. . . . Anything for a flash, of course. . . . I've lost my allowed friends pointing in the film—or "ribbing" as they call it. . . . To fig a guy, is to tease him into an embarrassing situation-as-shun. So the mob used me to put it over and the race fell. . . . Now poor Russ Columbo is the bait. . . . His pals promoted a gal with a Swedish dialect to keep phoning him. . . . She told Russ "I luff vot so much, I Garbo. Don't told nobody—I vuss by you place vare you sink and vuss so trilled!" . . . And spurious pach notes were sent to Russ signed "Greta." . . . He spent a young fortune on posies for her. . . . And some papers went for it, too, so Columbo lost nothing but his dignity.

That dope on some Des Moines sheet sure got his wordage garbled to fill a paragraph. . . . He reports that I was angry with a Des Moines reader over the line "New York is the diamond stickpin on the shirt front of America," and that the reader said "Don't you mean it's the gravy spot?" . . . The sap writing the column. I wish I knew what paper it was—I only got a clip; has his followers believing that I got very vexed and called Des Moines people "rubes." . . . There's one clunk who probably won't get to first Base with such repartonial inaccuracy. . . . As a matter of fact, I wasn't vexed, not am I mad if anybody can take a rap better than I can. And print it before the other guy does—when it is possible. I'd like to meet him. . . . But I am weary of the ham who does it purposely hoping that I will come back at him and thus make him better known. . . . That's an old trick. . . . I did it myself once upon a time. . . . And I thought at the time I was cute, too. . . . And that I'd show 'em by golly. . . . Now when I see that boner in my files I wish I could destroy the evidence. . . . And there are so many other stupid things I've written and accepted from others that I wish I could cover up. . . . Oh well. . . . Maybe Satan will forgive me and let me tend a furnace where I can sizzle "Lovely People" and stick my pitchfork in certain places where it is most uncomfortable.

I wish those college newspapers wouldn't interview me. . . . I never know what to tell them. . . . I could fake it, I know, but that's too hard. . . . That Yale News reporter, frinstance. . . . What do I think of college education? . . . "I don't know," I truthfully told him. "I never had any." . . . "You didn't?" he exclaimed. . . . Nope, I didn't!" I said. . . . "Well," he said, "then what do you think of Schools of Journalism?" . . . Now, what could I say? . . . If I said they were fine how do I know that they are? . . . So I said they were fine so he would change the subject. . . . Then he said "What do you think of college men?" . . . So I told him they were all right, but when I was a soph and dance mad, they frightened me at New Haven and Ann Arbor and at Champaign Ill. by swiping the gal off my arm although they returned her to the hotel safe but not so sound hours later. . . . When I could have disinterred it all in two sentences and told him truthfully that college men, as they were always known, is night-club fodder with that. . . . Cutting stuff free-for-alls were always started and they never would up on the winning side yet. . . . In fewer words 10 outta 10 college boys invariably act half their age. . . . Wonder if it is true? . . . I mean that that Hoey hooey actually pays contributors with small change theater passes and free meals at the expense of the sin-saloons?

Coming across that old editorial from the nimble pen of Dr. Frank Crane interrupted my routine longer than I wanted. . . . He was my favorite word-juggler when he was putting pieces in the paper. . . . I cannot recall one of his pieces that didn't hold my eye and interest me. . . . That clipping frixample called "A Colyumist of Other Days." . . . Even Dr. Crane spelled it "colyumist" making it simpler for traders to pronounce it. . . . The Dr observed that it is a poor newspaper these days and that was away back that does not employ a colyumist. . . . That is somebody who shall say shut and pithy things or at least try. . . . Dr. Crane said that it may be a comfort to the rest of us to know that La Rochefoucauld of France was a fine colyumist and that his sayings still live today. . . . That the French will "outsot the Smart Set. . . . I'll say he did—and his wit still appears in oh, so many columns, credited to everybody but La Roche. . . . But Bob Quillen another of my pets in the colyuming racket, said it this way: "Cast your paragraphs upon the waters and see them come back credited to somebody else." . . . Yeah? Not when I catch the whoos doing it. . . . La Roche's nimble cracks that I like best are: "We often pardon those who weary us, but we cannot pardon those whom we weary." "Our envy always outlives the happiness of those we envy," and, "There are few virtuous women who are not sometimes weary of their profession." . . . Oh if I only had more time to read! . . . And be refreshed. . . . And amount to Something Worth-While. . . . Wonder how red that Radiorale's face will get when he matches that signature with mine?

Wonder what a composite picture would look like of Ben Turpin's eyes, Joe E. Brown's mouth, James Durante's nose and Clark Gable's ears? . . . The one about Laval is a pippin. . . . They, it seems, asked him after he returned to his Paree his estimation of the strangest thing he had noticed while here. . . . So Mare-vour Laval replied that the United States had many wonderful things, but the strangest drink was one called the cocktail. . . . "And this is how they make it," he is supposed to have chirped. "They put in whisky to make it strong, then water to make it weak, gin to make it hot and ice to make it cold, lemon to make it sour, sugar to make it sweet, then they say 'Here's to you!' and then drink it themselves!" Something tells me I'd better quit giving so much space to Clarke before the crowd decides that I'm a one-woman man.

Billie Dove Wants to Be 'Swell Flier'

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Billie Dove is tired hearing how beautiful she is. She would much rather have her admirers say:

"What a swell flier she is!"

In a weary voice today she told how she had heard "pretty speeches" about the perfection of her features since, when she was 5, she began posing for artists.

Her voice took on an excited ring, however, when she said she already had been granted a pilot's license and was going to work for a transport license. She is waiting for the day, she said, when they tell her on the Hollywood lot that her next move will be a flying picture and they're hiring a double to do the flying for her.

Then she said she will draw herself up in her best "Oh, Yeah!" expression and tell them what a flier she is herself.

German-Made Thriller To Be Utilized

Universal is buying a German-made thriller, "Mountain of Flame," in order to remake it with English actors, retaining only the original scenic background. Almost a case of Mohammed and the mountain.

It was Paul Kohner who discovered the film during a recent trip to Europe. Upon his return he recommended it to Carl Laemmle, Jr., who approved and promptly arranged the purchase.

"Smiling Through," which Jane Cowl helped to write, was a fine drama when she starred in it. It was a fine silent movie, with Norma Talmage starred. Now it has reached its third phase, operetta, with music by Vincent Youmans, who also is the producer. With Norma Terris, Ada-May, Charles Winneger and Tom Powers it will smile through next week in the Nixon.

Two more performances of "Strange Interlude," tonight and Saturday night, in the Alvin, and the O'Neill five-hour drama will look at the clock someplace else. The opening time is 5:45, and an hour and ten minutes for the eats is allowed at 7:50 P. M.

Small Timer says those who kick in for hooch with a kick sometimes find it is just a case of kick the bucket.

A successful novelty of the New York season has been Cornelia Otis Skinner's lone-handing of "The Wives of Henry VIII."

Harpo, Groucho, Zeppo and Chico are Marxing daily onto the only strictly vaude stage left, the Palace. N. Wye Smith and Dale, who helped Winnie Lightner in "Manhattan Parde," are again Hollywood-bound to cast their shadows into "Mendel, Inc.," the last stage comedy in which they appeared hereabouts. Walter Hampden will revive "Cyrano de Bergerac" for a transcontinental tour to open in Richmond, January 30 . . . Chic Sale has just completed "Old Man Minnick" and his next film will be "Competition." "Rain," which became the Gloria Swanson silent film, "Miss Sadie Thompson," eventually will be a talkie, but the gal who will be Sadie isn't being mentioned as yet.

☆ ☆ ☆

Small Timer says it is not imprudent to strike a match, but be careful about one who is more than a match for you.

Winnie Lightner Makes Last Warner Film

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 8.—This new year promises to see many changes in studio players. Winnie Lightner is now making her last picture for Warners. It is called "Love on a Budget." She has been with the company since "Gold Diggers of Broadway." That was two years ago.

It is possible Charles Butterworth will be leaving Warners, too. He feels no one studio can offer him enough parts calling for his particular kind of comedy.

Over at R-K-O Hugh Herbert is leaving soon.

Changes everywhere.

Mary Wigman Dances Here Tonight

Mary Wigman, exponent of the modern dance, will give a performance in the Carnegie Music Hall tonight. She will be accompanied by Hanns Hastings, pianist. Miss Gretl Curth also will appear, playing primitive instruments of China and the Dutch East Indies.

Differ on Warner Style. • Mountaineers Get Busy.
MacMurdo Surprised. New Whitney Stable.

SUTHERLAND HAS VARIED OLD SYSTEM

JIM MACMURDO, a pretty fair sort of tackle for the University of Pittsburgh football team until his college playing time expired at the close of last season, and more recently an eight tackle for the all-East eleven which outfought the all-West outfit in San Francisco on New Year's Day, brings back from the Coast pretty good proof that Pitt's Dr. John B. Sutherland has developed quite a gridiron system of his own.

Jim MacMurdo

It's a system that started out like Pop Warner's, but MacMurdo says he has learned from personal experience that Sutherland has improved and broadened it to such an extent that as far as the players are concerned the connection between the two styles is not at once evident. At Pitt Jim played what was supposed to be the Warner system as taught by Sutherland, and on the all-East team he played what was supposed to be the same system as taught by Andy Kerr and Dick Hanley, and he says he found it almost impossible to believe that two, or rather three coaches, supposedly using the same system, could be so different.

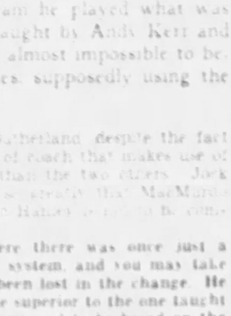
IT IS MACMURDO'S opinion that Sutherland, despite the fact that he is not generally rated as the kind of coach that makes use of a varied attack, has a much better than the two others. Jock has developed and improved the system, so clearly that MacMurdo says the same style as taught by Kerr and Hanley cannot be compared with it.

In other words, it appears that where there was once just a Warner system there is now a Sutherland system, and you may take MacMurdo's word for it that nothing has been lost in the change. He does not hesitate to pronounce the Pitt style superior to the one taught by Kerr and Hanley, though the two are supposed to be based on the same system.

AND IT CAN'T be said that Mr. MacMurdo gained his impression of a vast difference [illegible] in the Kerr [illegible] for the [illegible] Fairwood City [illegible] the starting lineup of the all-East team.

In fact, Jim was what might be called a natural football player. He never had much difficulty in learning anything about football and could have adapted himself easily to any system. His main trouble was the lethargic appearance of his play, which gave a false impression of indifference to watchers.

THE TAKING OVER of the Toledo American Association club by the Cleveland Indians on a one-year lease with a purchase privilege, because a satisfactory figure could not be obtained for an outright sale, shows again the straits into which minor league baseball has fallen at some points. Toledo was once a fine ball town, and six years ago the franchise there sold for $175,000, but during the recent receivership no offer approaching that price could be coaxed from prospective purchasers. The Cleveland deal probably means that Dante Bush, former Pirate manager, who had negotiated for the Toledo franchise, will hook up with the Minneapolis club in the same loop as pilot and part owner.



THE ATHLETIC MACHINERY at West Virginia University is in motion for the busiest winter season the institution has ever known, following the double spurt at Morgantown, Wednesday night, in which Coach Francis X. Stadsvold's basketball team was [illegible] Penn State, and Steve Hamrick's wrestlers grappled with Waynesburg to a tie.

Tomorrow night the basketeers face Francis X. Stadsvold Geneva, and next week the Mountaineer athletes will be busy in three sports. The Carnegie Tech boxing team is to be encountered in Morgantown. Temple will be met in basketball, and there will be another series of wrestling bouts with the Waynesburg matmen this time in Waynesburg.

THE FIRST TWO wrestling encounters of the season with Waynesburg are to be [illegible] in a series of meets in which Army, Michigan, Ohio State, Penn State, Indiana and others will be tackled.

Though West Virginia lost heavily from its 1931 basketball team in Ed Battin, center, and Lawrence Plasler, captain and guard, it still has the nucleus for [illegible] and a feeling that this may be its year to win a couple of [illegible] games from Pitt to say nothing of Carnegie Tech.

CUBBON, LANKY FORWARD of last year, has been shifted to center to take Bottrell's place. Capt. Davis, who was also football captain, is at one of the forwards. Lee Dotson, captain-elect in football for next season, is at a guard position, which leaves room in the starting lineup for two sophomores, Stanley Abruzzino, a midget flash, pairing with Davis at forward, and William Klug teaming with Dotson at guard. Because West Virginia has so many football men on their basketball team each year, the Mountaineers never can start their practice early. They had to go into their first game Wednesday with hardly two weeks' preparation.

STILL ANOTHER BRANCH of the Whitney stables greatest money winners in the history of the American turf is to enter the horseracing game this year. It is a new addition to the long line that started with William C. Whitney, followed by his sons, Harry P. and Payne and now carried on by Cornelius V., son of Harry P., and Mrs. Helen Hay Whitney, widow of Payne, and her son, John Hay Whitney.

The latest entrant is Mrs. Cornelius V. Whitney, wife of the young owner of Equipoise, Top Flight and many others. She has registered a new set of colors, blue and emerald green, and will go after steeplechase honors the coming season with a string of fine jumpers, including Skirl, Clio, Spinner, Hathroom and Beacon Hill.

THE FIRST WORLD championship fight of the new year is on the bills for tonight when Battling Battalino, in defense of the featherweight crown, will take on Lew Feldman, for 15 rounds at Madison Square Garden in New York.

It has been rumored that Battalino [illegible] the light of 1932 may also be [illegible] in that division, as increasing weight is [illegible] him. For a December bout he weighed 145 pounds, meaning that he had to take off 19 pounds for tonight's engagement. It now finds it so difficult to make the class limit of 126 that it is said he may forsake the division and try his luck among the lightweights.

Lew Feldman

IF BATTALINO DOES leave the featherweight class after tonight, it probably will be solely on account of the weight factor, as he appears to be in no danger of losing his title to Feldman. The latter does not yet measure up as a championship possibility. He is getting a title chance earlier than most fighters. Now 22, he has been fighting four years since he started as an amateur. In his first year as a pro he took part in almost 50 bouts without being defeated. In three years, since he gave up a job as a paper cutter to turn pro at boxing, he has engaged in about 60 bouts with a good record of victories. He lost several decisions, but usually received a return in return matches. His best fight was a losing one, in which he gave Kid Chocolate plenty of trouble. In his last bout he lost a questionable decision to Freddie Miller, the first southpaw he ever faced.

FIFTH AVENUE HIGH OPPOSES SCHENLEY

By JULIUS LEVIN

First place in Section I of the City League will be at stake this afternoon when the Clifford B. Connelley School quintet opposes Grover C. Washabaugh's smooth-working floor machine on the Connelley floor.

G. Washabaugh

Connelley and South both flashed impressive form in their inaugural battles, the former scoring a five-point victory over the heralded Perry quintet at Peabody, while South experienced no trouble in piling up a large tally on Taylor Allderdice, one of the favorites to win the Section I crown.

HEADS CITY CARD

The Connelley-South contest heads the City League card for this afternoon and the battle should draw a capacity crowd to the Hilltop court. Both Dickson and Washabaugh have their floor machines geared to perfection for the game.

Six games are scheduled in the two sections of the City League. Fifth Avenue makes its season's league debut by engaging an old rival in Schenley at Fifth Avenue and Westinghouse plays at Allderdice in other Section I contests. In Section II games find Oliver at South Hills, Langley at Allegheny Vocational and Allegheny at Carrick.

LEAGUE TEAMS CLASH

Warfare in all sections of the W. P. I. A. L. will be resumed on all battlefronts. Scott, defending W. P. I. A. L. and state champion, begins its fight to retain its laurels by engaging an old rival in Jim Hudson's Braddock quintet at North Braddock. This is a Section VIII contest.

Non-league contests find Perry at Shady Side, Sharon at Warren St. Joseph's (Oil City) at Mercer, Rankin Girls at Munhall Girls, Central Catholic at Rankin and Bloomfield at Hickory.

Oakmont set down Wilkinsburg 32 to 26 in yesterday's lone W. P. I. A. L. encounter. In non-league conflicts Arnold Juniors, Charleston and Poca copped.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 8.—J. D. Wallace, of Oakmont, today is playing his second round match in the mid-winter golf tourney at the Miami Country Club against Jones Clow, of Sugar Loaf Mountain, N. C., in the fourth flight. Yesterday he defeated O. L. Davis, of Miami, on the final green.

C. M. Scott, of the Pittsburgh Field Club, defaulted in the third flight to J. B. Huhn, of New York. Win. Day, of Chicago, medalist, raked out a 1-up victory over James West, Miami.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE ONLY DIRECT DESCENDANT OF THE DINOSAURS.—The tuatera is commonly called a lizard, which is zoologically incorrect. Its skull, skeleton and other anatomical details distinctly separate it from lizards, and show it to be the sole survivor of a group of extinct reptiles of a prehistorical age. Aptly it has been called a "living fossil" and "the last living witness of bygone ages." My drawing was made from a photograph of a tuatera in the Royal Zoological Gardens of Dublin, Ireland. This specimen holds the record among its kind of longevity in captivity, having been there since June, 1911.

U. S. L. T. A. 1931 RANKINGS SET

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The United States Lawn Tennis Association selection committee has recommended that the two Californians, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Ellsworth Vines, Jr., be ranked as the country's leading players for 1931.

Other recommendations probably will cause plenty of argument at the national meeting in New Orleans a month hence.

Before the rankings can become official they must be ratified by a majority vote of delegates.

DOEG, MRS. HARPER DROP

Vines' selection as the country's top ranking star climaxes a remarkable year for the 20-year-old Pasadena youth, rated no better than No. 8 at the start of the 1931 campaign.

Mrs. Moody returned to her customary place at the head of the feminine division after a year's lapse, in which she was not ranked because of lack of sufficient data.

Both of last year's No. 1 players took a tumble down the list. John Hope Doeg, ranked first among the men for 1930, dropped to No. 5. Mrs. L. A. Harper, of San Francisco, who led the women's division, fell to No. 3.

The "first 10" in American men's and women's tennis for 1931, as compared with their rankings for the previous year:

Dreyfuss Making Good Progress In Hospital

Barney Dreyfuss, Pirate owner, who underwent a serious operation in New York City Wednesday, is making satisfactory progress, according to a telegram received last night by Sam Watters, club secretary. The message was sent to Watters by Dreyfuss' son-in-law, William E. Benswanger, treasurer of the Bucos, who went to New York before the operation was performed.

SAXE FLORIDA GARDEN HEAD

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—William V. Saxe, New York lawyer, today was named president of the Madison Square Garden Corporation of Florida, and as his first official act postponed the signing of Max Schmeling and Mickey Walker for a heavyweight championship fight until Sunday or Monday.

Saxe, legal advisor to Madison Square Garden of New York, also is president of the Madison Square Gaden of Illinois and the Madison Square Garden of Ohio. All this was due to the fact that Schmeling, the champion, is under suspension in New York State, and the Madison Square Garden of New York cannot deal with him under pain of suspension itself.

Saxe said today there were so many lawyers mixed up in the Schmeling-Walker contract activity that it would take at least two days for all of them to make their speeches and he expects no actual contract signing before Monday.

MARINO VICTOR OVER GRANDE

Tony Marino, Reed Brown's McKeesport protege, won a unanimous decision over Frisco Grande, of Buffalo, in the 10-round main bout at the Palisades Rink, McKeesport, last night. Marino set a fast pace in the first seven rounds to early obtain his margin of advantage.

Tony jabbed and slashed the Filipino early in the fight, although Grande made a hearty effort at comeback in the eighth and ninth stanzas with a belated rally. In the final round, Marino remained his fast pace and had Grande on the defensive when the bout ended. Marino weighed in at 115½, and Grande at 113½.

Young Rudy, of Charleroi, recorded a lame verdict over Jimmy Moinette, of Alliance, O., in the first 10-rounder of the double windup. Rudy was aggressive only intermittently. The victor scaled 151¼, and Moinette, 151.

Another McKeesporter, Sharkey Lesko, weighing 144¼, had a hard time gaining the decision over Billy Wilson, 145, of this city, a brother of Jackie. It was Billy's first professional bout, and he lost the verdict on a split decision. It was the referee's ticket that decided matters.

Clair Repole, of Braddock, easily defeated Frankie Consola, of Swissvale, in the curtain-raiser.

Gridder Charges School Hired Him to Play

EUGENE, Ore., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—A declaration that he was hired by Willamette University, of Salem, Ore., to play football, was made yesterday by Harold McKenzie, in his answer to a suit in which Sigma Tau, Willamette fraternity, sought to collect for McKenzie's board and lodging.

McKenzie, a guard on the 1926 and 1927 football team, declared he contracted with the university in August, 1927, to play football, the school agreeing to grant a passing grade in hygiene, pay his tuition, and pay him $75 in cash and $10 a month during the school year. Room and board also was to be furnished, he asserted.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The bankrupt Toledo Mudhens, of the American Association, yesterday became the property of the Cleveland Indians for the coming season, with provision for outright purchase at the end of that period.

GAMES TONIGHT

Westminster vs. Grove City at Grove City.
Muskingum vs. Washington at Washington, Pa.

St. Francis vs. Slippery Rock at Slippery Rock.
W. Va. Wesleyan vs. Bethany at Bethany.
Duquesne vs. George Washington at Washington.
West Liberty at Morris Harvey.

By JESS CARVER

There are no college basketball games booked for the immediate vicinity of the city for tonight, but there is one up at Grove City and another down at Bethany that will be well worth the time of those who take 'em in.

The Panthers, the Tartans and the Dukes will mark time as they complete preparations for games tomorrow, and after marking time Pitt will return to its Pullmanning, paddling off to Syracuse where tomorrow they'll meet the Orange.

BATTLES TO PLAY

Duquesne has Cliff Battles and his West Virginia Wesleyan Bob Kitties listed for a show in the Duke gym tomorrow. Tech engages Thiel in the Schenley Park gym.

Wesleyan, with a win over West Virginia, over confidence knocked out by the Waynesburg defeat and the great Mister Battles clicking like the champion he is, has the Dukes worried. A year ago, it took the locals a long overtime period to nose out the Cats, Cebe Ross has a veteran squad, two sterling performers in Hull and Battles and is well set for reserves. It took the Mountaineers on their own court, which is no easy task to accomplish.

Grove City figures to beat Westminster tonight. The Titans lost strength from last year's crack club, while the Grovers have taken on strength, despite their defeat by Duquesne Tuesday.

HENRY NAMED W. & J. HEAD

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 8.—Wilbur (Pete) Henry, former Washington & Jefferson football star, was named acting graduate manager by the college's athletic council last night.

He succeeds William G. Theurer, whose four-year contract expired recently, and was not renewed at Theurer's request.

Henry has been assistant varsity football coach and varsity basketball coach.

Glenn A. Wild was named varsity basketball mentor, so that Henry could assume his new duties.

The council approved a wrestling match between the Oklahoma A. and M. team, intercollegiate champions last year, here either February 9 or 11 and also approved boxing and wrestling as a sport.

A program was presented by Dr. R. C. Hutchison, new president of the school, advocating a reorganization of the athletic department and policy.

OLYMPIC TRIALS

Minnesota U.	5—Michigan U. F.	4

By CARL W. SHATTO

The Yellow Jackets will have a new supply of confidence and will be aiming for the third notch in the International Hockey League standings when they meet Buffalo's pace-setting Bisons at Fort Erie tomorrow night.

After winning over Cleveland and London here on Thursday and Saturday of last week, the locals were robbed of about 90 per cent of their confidence on Tuesday when they invaded Windsor and were handed a 6-0 setback by the Bulldogs. Last night the Bulldogs league champions, came to Duquesne Garden, and at the finish of a wild overtime battle, they would have given a great deal for three of the goals that they scored when they didn't need 'em on Tuesday, for the Jackets gained sweet revenge by winning 2 to 0.

The triumph advanced the Reidmen from a fifth-place tie with Cleveland into a fourth-place tie with Windsor, and enabled the locals to even the season series with their Canadian rivals at two victories each.

DUNNING SCORES

Stu Dunning, right wing obtained from Cleveland in exchange for Milt Halliday in a deal consummated on Monday, made his first start in a Pittsburgh uniform before Pittsburgh fans one to be remembered by scoring the victory goal after two minutes and 25 seconds of battling in the extra period. Dunning registered on an assist from Joe Matte. He received the puck about 15 feet out, and directly in front of the Windsor cage. His hot shot took Kerr, Bulldog goalie, by surprise, and the visiting net guardian was not able to so much as make a stab at deflecting it.

It was very appropriate that Matte should be on the assisting end of this important tally, for Joe played a superlative game at defense throughout the battle, and absorbed no little punishment in dealing out fierce body checks.

About two minutes later, Whitey Fields made the Pittsburgh triumph secure by scoring on a fine unassisted effort. As the Bulldogs sent five men into Pittsburgh territory in an effort to get a tally to match the one contributed by Dunning, Fields wrested the puck from an enemy attacker, and outskated all and sundry in a mad dash to the Windsor goal. Whitey beat his pursuers to the cage by a single stride, and had to get off his shot while traveling at top speed.

BULLDOGS OUTPLAYED

The Jackets outplayed their rivals by such an overwhelming margin that they should have won by at least four goals in the regulation playing time. Early in the fight Earl Miller broke through the Windsor defense only to have a split stick, rather than a great feat by the visiting goalie, deprive him of a score. Miller did not notice that his stick was held together only by a sliver as he sped down the ice, but he did notice that something was wrong when the weapon collapsed as he attempted to get off his shot. In the second period he met with a similar fate, his stick catching in the pads of a Windsor guard and breaking in half as he broke through the Windsor defense.

Tex White, Doc Romnes, Eddie Rodden and Gordy Fraser also found themselves in possession of golden scoring opportunities as the Jackets outplayed the Bulldogs almost all the way, and only some very fine net guarding and a rare amount of luck enabled Goalie Kerr to keep his cage from becoming too familiar with the puck until the dawn of the extra stanza. The lineup:

Pittsburgh		Windsor
Orr	G	Kerr
Fraser	D	Bottomley
Matte	D	J. Arbour
Silver	C	Duguette
V. Arbour	W	Phillips
Dunning	W	F. Roche

Score by periods:

Scores—Pittsburgh, Romnes, Barton, Fields. Penalties—Roden, White, Bentley, Windsor, Haines, Lever, Dumont, Huggins, Brown.

Goals—First period, None. Second period, None. Third period, None. Overtime period, Dunning (from Matte), 2:25.

Penalties—First period, Lever. Second period, Duguette, Fields 2, Arbour, Pennel. Third period, Phillips, Dunning, Matte, Duguette, Haines, Lever, Dumont, Huggins, Brown.

Radio Station WWSW was the medium which Jack Keough, sports announcer, and Carl Shatto, hockey writer, both of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, and Tory Gregg, captain of the Yellow Jackets, used in broadcasting Pittsburgh's 2-0 victory over Windsor at Duquesne Garden last night. Keough gave the play-by-play description of the battle. Shatto summed up the high spots of the play after each period, and Gregg, out of the lineup because of an injury, painted verbal pictures of the local skaters.

P. T. A. CONFAB MONDAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Western Pennsylvania net leaders will gather for a highly significant confab here Monday evening as the Pittsburgh Tennis Association convenes in annual midwinter meeting at the P. A. A. Numerous projects of unusual moment face the racquet moguls at the impending session.

In consequence, it is probable that a large throng, representative of all of the nearly a score of clubs affiliated with the P. T. A., will be on deck and that an exceptionally eventful seance will be staged.

Chief among propositions slated for discussion at the Monday soiree is that of sending a Steel City delegate to the Middle States L. T. A. get-together at Philadelphia later in the month and to the U. S. L. T. A. conclave at New Orleans shortly thereafter.

It has been quite a while since P. T. A. has seen fit to incur the expense of representation at sectional or national powwows. This year, however, there exists circumstances that have stirred up no little sentiment in favor of breaking immediate precedent in the matter.

The fact is, it is no secret that factionalism is rife in U. S. L. T. A. circles this winter. The Pittsburgh court body has been urged by each party to pop with it into the battle, but inasmuch as the fog is still thick around both camps, local officials have wisely withheld decision pending further investigation of who is for whom and what stands for what.

President J. Phillips Davis will rap for order promptly at 8:15 o'clock. All tennis fans, regardless of club tieup, have been invited to sit in, to listen in, and to offer comment.

South High Gridders Guests at Banquet

South High's football team, which lost only one City League game during the past season, was banqueted last night in the school auditorium by the South High Alumni and the members of the South Side Businessmen's Association.

ROVER BOOTERS PLAY SWITCH

By TOM BIRKS

Three soccer games are to be played in the Central League tomorrow afternoon, the feature flashing the league-leading Union Switch and Signal team against the Pittsburgh Rovers, at Leslie Park.

At Tarentum, the Pittsburgh Celtics do their stuff, while at McKeesport, National Tube meets the German Sport outfit. All of the games are scheduled to begin at 3 p. m.

The writer has received a letter from Jimmy McFarlane, the Cleveland referee who handled the Morgan-Slavia game last Sunday. McFarlane resents the alleged unkind things the writer and other Pittsburghers have said since that game was played.

He places the blame on the shoulders of Mitchell. He states that "had not Mitchell, who was the Morgan substitute on the side lines, ran on the field, the crowd never would have followed." But the referee does not refer in any way to the manhandling Buff Donnelli received.

Whether Ohio national officials know it or not, there is a decided trend of opinion here that Buckeye state officials are favoring Ohio teams in national tourneys, and if this opinion once becomes national, a toboggan slide may carry Ohio to the bottom of the heap.

Writing in a Detroit newspaper, Arthur Sale commented upon the draw of the amateur, recently conducted in Pittsburgh, and openly stated that Michigan teams and officials were anything but satisfied with the early rounds.

Bookies Are Hit In Racing Coup

CHICAGO, Jan. 8. — Another West Coast betting coup yesterday hit bookmakers in Chicago and all over the country for at least $1,000,000.

Linden Tree, a 2-year-old in the first race at Agua Caliente, was the means of the coup. There was a delay of nine minutes at the post as just before the horses were off the odds on Linden Tree were changed to 9 to 1. The horse won easily and paid $21.40 in the mutuels.

It was estimated that about $40,000 was bet on the horse in Chicago alone. Should the bookies have to pay off at 9 to 1, they stand to lose $360,000. At a 1 to 3 price their loss would be only about $13,000.

It is believed that the race was manipulated at the track by a gang of gamblers, who forced false odds by betting on another horse in the race.

With Al Brown, the Panama Negro, holder of the world bantamweight championship, scheduled to arrive almost any hour from Los Angeles, where he boxed Speedy Dado last Monday night, Matchmaker Jules Beck, of Motor Square Garden, has received word from his manager, Dave Lumiansky, at least partially explaining away the Human Toothpick's two successive defeats on the Coast in bouts with Newsboy Brown and Dado.

"The climate affected the champion in his first match against Brown," Lumiansky informed Beck, "and, in his condition, he suffered body injuries from the hard-punching Newsboy. He was not able to do much training for the Dado match as a result of these injuries and was off form against the Filipino. However, he was not further injured in the Dado bout and the rest while traveling to Pittsburgh, with a little loosening up after he arrives, should fix him up just right for the Mose Butch bout."

TO BOX PLADNER

Brown leaves here immediately after his non-title match with Butch Monday for New York to sail the latter part of next week for London to participate in a benefit show for the Royal Infirmary. From London he goes to Paris to defend his title against Spider Pladner, February 22, and then he returns to London to box Dick Corbett, holder of the Lord Lonsdale belt, on March 17.

The California experience is the worst in Brown's career. He has lost only four bouts all told in the last three years, one to Battling Battalino, the featherweight champion who outscaled him by 10 pounds; one on a foul to Johnny Cuthbert in London, and his last two starts against Brown and Dado. He claims he really knocked out Cuthbert with a solar plexus punch, but the latter's claim of a foul was allowed.

Between Rounds

The Garden card for Monday night is complete with the signing of Tony Vaccaro, of Fairmont, W. Va., to box Buddy Stewart, local Negro lightweight, in the second bout. Charley Baxter and Danny Dwyer are in the eight-round semi-final, and Bobby Burns and Johnny Monferdini in the opener.

Midget Mike O'Dowd leaves Ken Selbach, of Louisville, in the main bout at Wheeling, Monday night. Young Randolph, of New Kensington, meets Tony Petrella, of Wheeling, in the semi-final.

Frank A. Howard, local business man, has bought the contract of Jimmy Grogan, new featherweight prospect of Toledo, from Jack Doherty, Detroit, and is trying to get several bouts for him. Mr. Howard, who had his amateur boxer, has boxed Pete Zivic, Teddy Materazo, Young Kaufman and Jackie Wilson, when turning pro. Manager Howard may be reached by ringing Montrose 6181.

Buddy McArthur and Russ Rowsey have been matched to take the place of the George Funko-Tim Powell battle at Clarksburg, next Monday night, called off when Funko left to join Max Schmeling's entourage in the East.

Lew Feldman, who holds flattering battles for the world featherweight title in Madison Square Garden, New York, tonight, was born in Scotland and came to Detroit a Scotch lad.

Joe Kopelousos, of Clinton, Pa., has entered the A. M. A. junior boxing tourney, at the Keystone Club, January 26, 28 and 29. He was the runner-up in the A. Leroy's recent Golden Gloves tournament and also is a marathon runner of note.

The ticket scandal case against Matt Sparto, Hazleton grocery out of a ringed championship, will be heard in the Valley County Municipal court Christmas afternoon, not Monday, as previously announced. Sparto is charged with the illegal sale and transfer of tickets for the Sparto-Jack Kid Berg bout in Hazleton last June 1, and Tony Galento, of Orange, N. J., a suitable heavyweight opponent.

Battling Glass has been offered a bout with Barney Ross in the Chicago Stadium, and his manager, Abe Wilmore, has accepted.

Tommy Belmont's bout with Jackie Brady at Indianapolis on January 18 has been set back a week, to January 25, it is said. Belmont, in the opinion of Matt Bowers, leaves one town from next Monday night at Ted Varney, recent victor over Belmont there, to take on the other Sunday night at Cincinnati, for the chance to fight Abe Kaplan for what is now Ben Jeby and Tony Galento, of a suitable heavyweight opponent.

Midget Mike O'Dowd leaves Ken Selbach, of Louisville, in the main bout at Wheeling, Monday night. Young Randolph, of New Kensington, meets Tony Petrella, of Wheeling, in the semi-final.

Buddy McArthur and Russ Rowsey have been matched to take the place of the George Funko-Tim Powell battle at Clarksburg, next Monday night, called off when Funko left to join Max Schmeling's entourage in the East.

Battalino May Forfeit Ring Title

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The Hartford Courant says Bat Battalino, world featherweight champion, will not make 126 pounds when he weighs in for his title defense against Lew Feldman in Madison Squar Garden tonight and may vacate his title.

Battalino, who will not weigh less than 131 pounds, asked today for a postponement in order to have an opportunity to train properly, the Courant says, and was refused by Madison Square Garden officials and officials of the New York State Athletic Commission.

Battalino has been handicapped in his training by inclement weather preventing his road work.

STOCK MARKET CONTINUES TO ADVANCE

List for Third Successive Session Gains, but Much Of Momentum Disappears

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 — (AP.)—For the third successive session, the stock market continued to climb today.

The resumption of the movement in its third day made it one of the most persistent in weeks, but much of the momentum was lost. Trading dwindled to small volume but hesitancy during an early period of profit taking was soon overcome.

Coppers and rails were notably firm groups. In the red metal group Kennecott, American Smelting and Cerro De Pasco rose about a point, and Anaconda gained a major fraction. Most of the leading rails, including Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, New York Central and others gained a point or so. United States Steel advanced moderately and miscellaneous issues up a point or so included Eastman, Allied Chemical, Kreuger and Toll, Coca Cola and several of the New York tractions. There were several declines of a point or so during the early profit taking, but they were soon cancelled.

While the measure to create the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has proceeded in Congress somewhat more slowly than anticipated, confidence was expressed that the corporation will be functioning in time to prevent threatened receiverships that until recently had caused considerable worry.

The copper shares responded to the announcement that Copper Exporters, Inc., was finishing revision of its rules which has apparently prevented a threatened breaking up of this association. Copper was firm, but unchanged at 7¼ cents a pound.

The December statement of General Motors sales shows 55,588 cars sold, against 34,673 in November.

Wall street forecasts of United States Steel's unfilled tonnage report, due tomorrow, indicate a small decline during December, but no significant change is anticipated. Brokerage circles are busy with gossip over the steel corporation's dividend meeting at the end of the month and some usually well-informed quarters would not be surprised if action were deferred.

COTTON SLIDES, THEN RISES

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Cotton opened steady today, unchanged to 2 points off, with orders evenly divided. March sold at 6.35c.

Trading was quiet and showed no special feature, but the offerings were light. In addition to trade buying there was some scattered covering which held the market steady after the call, with March ruling around 6.38c and July 6.71c at the end of the first half hour or about net unchanged to 1 point higher.

The market continued quiet later in the morning. There was some further southern selling and Liverpool was a moderate seller here up to the close of that market, but the offerings were absorbed by further covering and trade buying which was supposed to include a little buying for the Far East. March sold up 6.42 and July to 6.76 or about 4 to 5 points net higher and the market at midday was steady within a point or two of these figures.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 8.—Cotton-spot quiet; prices 6 to 11 points lower; quotations in pence: American strict good middling 5.88; good middling 5.48; strict middling, 5.38; middling, 5.33; strict low middling, 5.23; low middling 5.13; strict good ordinary, 4.93; good ordinary, 4.63. Receipts 19,000; American 12,600. Futures closed quiet and steady: January 4.96; March, 4.93; May, 4.91; July, 4.91; October, 4.96; December, 5.01; January, 5.03.

Grain Collections Below Soviet Quota

MOSCOW, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Grain collections in 1931 amounted to only 89.6 per cent of the total fixed by the five-year plan, but were 3.1 per cent more than the 1930 total.

An official announcement placed the blame for the deficit on poor management of the collective farms and insufficient transportation facilities.

Cotton collections amounted to only 62 per cent of the year's quota, and responsibility for this was attributed to similar factors.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

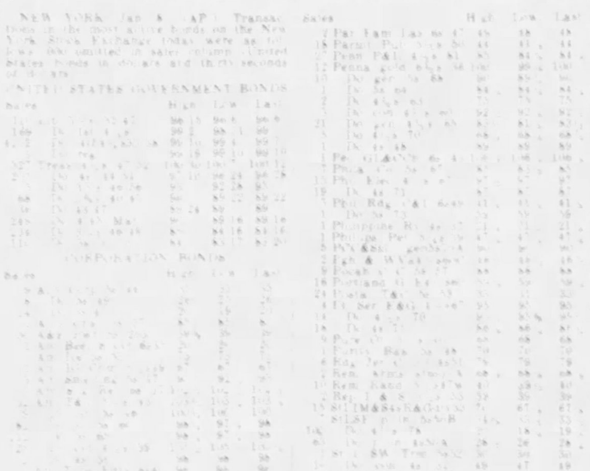
American Tobacco Co. Ltd. (no consolidated) September 30, 1931, shows net profit of £5,331,445 after charges and taxes. This is equivalent after preferred dividends to £1.14 per £6 par ordinary shares and to 14 per cent on the ordinary stock, and compares with £6,501,780, or £1.21 per £6 par ordinary stock in the preceding fiscal year.

F. W. Woolworth & Co. Ltd. (consolidated) for F. W. Woolworth & Co. for year ended December 31, 1931, shows net profit of £4,211,566 after charges but before income tax, depreciation, reorganization expenses and other items for account carried forward was £1,822,940. The annual meeting will be held January 15.

Pullman Company reports November net operating profit of $298,975, compared with $1,187,738 for November 1930. For 11 months net operating income totaled $2,197,744, against $4,256,424 in the 1930 period.

Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Company reports net profit of $2,000,000 for the quarter ended December 31, 1931, after dividends accrued on 6 per cent preferred stock. Charles S. Pearce, president, states:

NEW YORK BOND MARKET



TRADE LEADERS SCRUTINIZE METHODS

Depression Likely to Bring Revolt Against Economic Waste, Traditional Ideas

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
United News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The lash of business is causing alert executives to scrutinize their methods more closely than ever before.

Accordingly, as a partial offset to the immense social cost of the existing depression, there may well be a quiet revolution in the direction of eliminating economic waste and traditional ideas.

Mr. Rukeyser.

Prof. Edgar James Swift, of Washington University, is quoted as having observed that no businessman will strive too vigorously to improve his methods except under pressure of fear or excitement of keen personal competition. Fear and intensified competition at present are driving hard against inertia.

SOUNDS KEYNOTE

In sounding the keynote of the new style business thinking, Dr. Glenn Frank recently remarked:

"We have produced commodities. We must now produce consumers."

Merchandising men are just beginning to sense the full meaning of the opportunity to present to consumers the goods they prefer, rather than something that the market is seeking to unload.

Through the present crisis, the best relative showing has been made by scientific merchandising agencies, which acted on this basic truth.

NEW PHILOSOPHY

The philosophy of this new viewpoint was formulated in 1929 by Kenneth M. Goode, advertising expert, in his book "How to Turn People Into Gold," as follows:

"Business must aim to serve, instead of to sell.

"Fewer articles, intelligently tested as to public demand, will save unnecessary manufacturing costs.

"Natural markets, operated for profits rather than size, will cut down selling costs.

"Getting rid of every penny's worth of expense not absolutely necessary to make or distribute any given article will eliminate huge wastes.

"Intelligent alertness and vigilant curiosity on the part of every business executive as to the best method of carrying on every business activity—big or little—will give more leisure and greater profits.

"A fair share of these savings passed on to the public in lower prices, will open up vast new markets.

"As things get cheaper, multitudes more people can buy them. This, of course, opens a huge replenishment market to keep workers on the pay rolls."

WHEAT PRICES TAKE TUMBLE

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Grain prices underwent an early setback today, affected by stock market downturns and by wheat selling on the part of houses with eastern connections. Liverpool reported free offerings of Argentine wheat and increased Australian shipments to Great Britain. Opening ¼@¾c off, wheat afterward sagged further. Corn started ⅛@⅜c lower and continued to recede.

An all around tumble of a cent a bushel in wheat values took place before the market steadied itself. No rallying power of any consequence was apparent at this stage. Intimations that North American seaboard holdings of wheat were diminishing rapidly and that Antwerp and Holland were showing more interest in United States hard winter wheat failed to act as a market stimulus.

LOCAL MARKET QUIET AND NARROW

Traders Await Definite Movement in New York; Sales Pressure Absent

Trading volume declined sharply on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. Absence of interest was evident in all quarters of the market.

Ability of the New York market to rally substantially two days in succession was looked upon as a favorable development and served to deter any further liquidation in stocks here. On the other hand, buying demand was very light and such orders as were in the market were at figures slightly under the levels prevailing on the close last night.

Motor Makers Set Example To Win Prosperity

By B. C. FORBES

MOTOR MANUFACTURERS are showing other industrial leaders how to tackle vigorously the problem of winning back prosperity. They have devoted the full strength of their battery of brains to making their products more attractive, they have effected economies which have made it possible for them to name lower prices, they have planned and are putting into operation extraordinarily aggressive advertising and sales programs.

Mr. Forbes

The prospect is that more money will be spent on motor advertising during the first quarter of this year than during any previous three months in the industry's history.

THE NEWS among those gathering for the New York automobile show, which opens tomorrow, is that Ford recently altered his plans and is now busily preparing to bring out an eight-cylinder car. If he can do this without raising prices he will cause a furore in the automotive world. There now are six-cylinder cars in the very low price field, but eights have heretofore belonged to a higher price range.

Definite announcement of Ford's plans is awaited with eager interest.

ONE NEW eight at a low price was announced yesterday by Pontiac which has not heretofore invaded the eight field.

Under the driving power of President J. J. Reuter and W. A. Blees, vice president in charge of sales, Pontiac has pushed ahead even during 1931, advancing from sixth to fourth place in volume of national sales.

What methods were used to achieve this record?

Mr. Blees announced a year ago that Pontiac was determined to see to it that its dealers had a prosperous year. A standardized system of dealing accounting enabled each dealer and the company—to see clearly where profits were being earned and where weakness developed. A factory representative was sent to lend co-operation.

Dealers were assured the company did not want "profitless volume." Collection campaigns were initiated which thawed out millions of outstanding dollars. Aid was given in selling used cars. Service on all makes of cars was encouraged.

The company even went so far as to send out traveling factory service schools to train dealers' mechanics in their own shops. Mr. Blees continues:

"If we sell this year only the same number of cars as we sold last year, our dealers will make, about, $3,000,000 more in profit as a result of corrections made in their management."

SIR HENRI DETERDING, head of the Royal Dutch and Shell companies, commenting recently on the shares, told a European oil journal:

"I wish the public would realize that the Royal Dutch and Shell companies and their numerous subsidiaries had available the equivalent of tens of millions of pounds sterling. Even if gold were to cease having any value, oil—the most ideal source of energy on land, the sea and the air—would always remain of the highest value."

Sir Henri added:

"What occurred after each crisis would again happen: the royal Dutch-Shell group would emerge from it stronger than ever before."

AMERICAN SECURITIES increased in market value over a thousand million dollars—a billion—in five hours this week on Wednesday. Sooner or later bears are destined to get a painful dose of what they have been giving others.

Oil Trade Problems Not Due to General Business Conditions

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE OIL INDUSTRY is facing problems which are not attributable to the general decline in business. This places the petroleum producers in a different class than most other types of activity in our survey of the types of business which are likely to benefit to the greatest extent from a recovery.

It will be recalled that overproduction has been a serious factor in the oil trade for the past five years. It has reduced prices and has limited earnings in the industry during the greater part of this period. Conditions reached their most acute stage in 1931.

The decline in the actual consumption of gasoline and other petroleum products has been quite small. The difficulties of the oil industry had their foundation in the years preceding 1930 and 1931. Oil is suffering mainly from conditions developed within the industry. Its troubles are attributable to the state of general business to only a minor extent.

Accordingly, it will take more than an upswing in the rate of general business activity to restore the oil companies to prosperity. Oil securities undoubtedly will reflect any movement in the market values of other stocks and bonds, but, unless the internal condition of overproduction is corrected, investors in oil stock will not be likely to share in the general improvement to more than a minor extent.

Oil Leaders Point to Progress in Proration

PRESIDENTS OF LEADING oil companies in year-end statements have pointed to the progress shown in enforcing proration measures. Undoubtedly much has been done toward reducing the output of oil but production does not appear to have been reduced to a great enough extent to solve the industry's problems.

W. C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, states that total stocks of crude and refined oil products are expected to stand at 987,000,000 barrels when final figures are compiled as of the close of 1931. This compared with 1,064,000,000 barrels a year ago. Mr. Teagle points out that the reduction constituted a record draft on stocks for any single year.

While these figures are impressive it must be remembered that the year included the period when the entire output of East Texas and a large share of Oklahoma was shut down under martial law.

The last figures of the American Petroleum Institute show that average daily production of crude oil in the week ended January 2 amounted to 2,209,100 barrels. This was less than in the preceding week, but it still substantially exceeded the output of the corresponding week a year ago, when 2,082,100 barrels were produced.

Drilling Costs to Be Small in Future

OF COURSE THE oil industry may be able to make more substantial progress in checking production in coming months and may have its house in sufficient order to permit the benefits of business recovery to be more directly helpful. Until the control of output becomes much more rigid than at present, however, the future of oil will be uncertain. The fact that there is always a possibility that the discovery of a new pool may add to the chaos must also be taken into consideration.

The investor wishing to take full advantage of industrial recovery when the uptrend starts, should watch the oil industry for any correction in the condition of overproduction. Only when this situation is met will the cloud be removed from the future of the oil companies. If satisfactory control is established, the vast potential output of the industry will become a valuable insurance for the future instead of a menace as at present. In that case the leading companies would be able to operate for several years without making heavy expenditures for new drilling operations and this would be reflected in large profits and the accumulation of impressive surplus cash accounts.

THE BEAST OF THE CITY

A Story of Fatal Beauty That Lurks In All Big City Jungles

By JACK LAIT

it's important."

The chief shrugged his shoulders, sighed and made a profound bow to his elect audience.

"You will pardon me a moment," he said. "Duty calls."

At the telephone he heard the quiet, businesslike voice of John Craig, Chief of Detectives.

"——And Fitzpatrick has arrested him and five of his outfit, including Mike Cholo. They will be at headquarters in a short time. I'm sorry to bother you, chief, but I think you should be on hand. Belmonte is a tough egg——"

"I'll be right down," the chief cut in. "Do nothing until I arrive." He strode back into the living room and announced: "My men have picked up Guiseppe Belmonte for the murder of four men and I will have to take charge at headquarters at once."

"Oh, how kicky!" exclaimed the actress, clapping her hands. "Can't we all go along? It would be no end grand to see a real gang chief."

TAKES FRIENDS ALONG

"Please let us go with you, chief," lisped one of the women bridge players. They all crowded about him, cajoling, insistent. The chief rubbed his chin a moment and then said:

"Well, I see no reason why you shouldn't. You are representative law-abiding tax-paying citizens. It will give you a fair idea of how we deal with such as these."

There was a scurry for coats and wraps. Fortified with another cocktail the party left in three cars for Police Headquarters.

Chief Burton, who had been appointed head of the Police Department following a newspaper vice crusade, was a silk-lined society man, a demi-semi politician and head of a large promotion agency. He had gone into the office as a man whose personal life was above reproach, one whose income forestalled any possibility of graft—but to the old-line cops hard-boiled and experienced, he was the elegant kid, the hotcha dresser, the snowy-white daisy of personal ballyhoo—and a ridiculous amateur. He used lavender toilet water.

He assumed the airs of a czar the newspapers kept him on the front page day after day, his first act was to disband the strong-arm squad which even the gangsters had always held in terror, and he appointed himself a committee of one to investigate the flat-feet on their beats—he might lob up at any time of day or night just when some lone cop was to pull his box, and find that the poor harness-bull's shoes weren't shined. Cops and crooks alike smirked behind his back, and crime and graft capered merrily on.

When he entered headquarters leading his guests, swinging his cane, he was determined to make an example of Belmonte—although he didn't know what it was all about. He conducted his party to the Chief of Detectives' office on the second floor, issued commands for more chairs and lined his friends up against the wall much like a coroner's jury. He would have liked to have set the stage better, to have used the line-up room which was more like a theater, but he felt that in the small office he could better command the center of things and he didn't want to appear too formal. He approved the idea of Belmonte being invited in."

Chief of Detectives Craig and his lieutenants plainly showed by their actions their astonishment of his unprecedented impromptu soiree, but said nothing. The dozen men and women lighted cigarets, giggled, gaped and talked, while they waited for the great gang-chief to appear. Newspaper reporters and photographers enjoyed the scene, too, for it meant smoking cops.

"I hope I didn't spail your evening, Chief," again apologized Craig. But Chief Burton, an immense figure, strutted back and forth, swinging his stick.

"It's my worry anyway, isn't it?" he insisted in a loud tone. "You say he murdered four men—strung them up in a warehouse?"

"Oh, we didn't exactly say he actually murdered them," warily corrected Craig. "We believe he's behind it—because the Dopey Boys were muscling in on his racket——"

"This IS interesting!" exclaimed the actress. "I never was so thrilled in my life."

"Well, madam, it's all a part of the day's work—the only thrill we get is when we can pin something on a bad egg like that."

SUSPECTS PRESENTED

A detective opened the door and announced:

"Fitzpatrick's here!"

Chief Burton stopped short in his peripatetic nervousness and turned toward the door. Fitzpatrick, his countenance grim and determined, holding the scowling Belmonte tightly by the arm, walked in. He stopped short at the festive scene in the room, set his jaw and yanked the gang-chief toward Chief Burton. He was followed by Mac and Tom, who had between them a tall slender well-dressed young fellow of dark and hawk-like countenance. This was Mike Cholo, known as the rat and a killer. Four other men, black eyes stabbing out their hatred of cops and cop methods, were in tow of a dozen detectives.

Chief Burton surveyed the group a moment with a haughty and majestic air, cleared his throat impressively and walked up to the fat and fatuous Belmonte.

"What have they to say?" the chief demanded.

Belmonte looked him and the guests up, down and over, and answered:

"Nuttin'."

* * *

Fightin' Jim Fitzpatrick, who had battled his way upward to head of the Homicide Squad by virtue of a hard-boiled and relentless attitude toward crooks and criminals, walked out of the Chief of Detectives' office to the accompaniment of feminine giggles and the blooming of flashlights. He snorted in disgust.

His brother Ed, who had been lingering outside the door, hurried up to him.

"What happened?" Ed asked, apprehensively, noting the evil look on Fitz's face.

"Happened!" growled Fitz. "Happened—what else could have happened? We had no more'n got that cockroach in here than a writ of habeas corpus trails him down. The chief wouldn't listen to reason. I wanted him to wave them aside—there's a few things I'd like to have put up to Belmonte. But our softie with his nearer-my-goodness-to-thee attitude toward the majesty of the law wouldn't hear to it. Belmonte laughed in his face. And now the chief and the dolls and pansies he brought down with him are getting their pictures taken. America, I love you!"

The door of the chief of detectives' office opened again. Belmonte, his swarthy and greasy countenance beaming, came out, flanked by his five hoodlums.

"Lo, Fitz," he snapped cheerily. "Nice little party you brought me to. Some classy molls in that outfit. I invited 'em all to come down and have dinner with me some night. I'll open——"

Fitz wheeled, his face white with anger.

"You get off this time, Belmonte!" he exclaimed hoarsely, clenching his fists. "An' you're crowing over it. But so help me God I'll get you and your dirty mob. I'll——"

"Let me take a punch at the skunk, Jim!" cried Ed, pushing past his brother. Belmonte stepped behind his henchmen, still grinning. Fitz caught his brother's arm.

"Cut it, kid—don't be a fool," he admonished. "His time'll come. He's only hanging himself."

"But I didn't hang the Dopey Boys, Cap'n," and Belmonte made a bow and maneuvered his way around Fitz toward the stairs. His companions, dark and evil scowls on their faces, followed him. Fitz shrugged his shoulders.

"Come on, Jim. I'll drive you home," said Mac, who had joined his chief.

"No, thanks, think I'll walk it off, goodnight," and he hurried away.

Meantime, Chief Burton was saying to Chief Craig:

"I think that fellow Fitzpatrick is over zealous. That was a stupid, stupendous blunder he made in arresting Belmonte. And I'm the one who will get the criticism. We must have no more of this."

"But he must have had something on Belmonte to take a chance like that," said Chief Craig softly.

"You must speak severely to him," insisted Chief Burton, giving his arm to the actress as he prepared to leave.

Daisy Beaumont fretted and fumed in her cell at police headquarters.

"They just won't let a girl go straight!" she exclaimed to the phlegmatic matron, who pushed in a large can of coffee and a hunk of bread. Daisy snorted at the food and drink.

Daisy stood defiant before the glaring lights.

"If you let me use a telephone I'll get some decent chow," she said.

"There ain't no telephone," grunted the matron.

"Well, what's the rap—what have I done?" cried Daisy, shaking her platinum-topped head angrily. "They come around an' pick me up at home, I'm makin' an honest livin'—workin' at a job and they won't leave me alone." She paused a moment and then said, "Let me see Capt. Fitzpatrick—he's my friend."

"If he's such a friend," confided the matron, "why didn't you talk to his brother, Ed. He was the one who brought you in."

"Oh, so that was his brother—he looked more like a sheik than a cop," mused Daisy. "He was pretty nice about it, anyway—nice and polite. But what's the rap?"

"I don't know. You'll be in the lineup at 10. You'll find out then. It's almost time. They got four other blondes like you—I guess they want to detect if they're natural or phoneyed up."

"Well, they haven't got a thing on me, not even peroxide. They can't pinch a party because of their complexion."

"But they did. Anyway, here they are now. Come on."

The matron dangled a bunch of keys which hung from her belt and the lock squeaked open. Daisy unconsciously patted her hair in place. Outside she was lined up with six other girls and marched down a long hall—ay.

On the lineup stage, beneath a strip of lights casting dazzling glares and backed before a large blackboard which was ruled off in feet and inches, the girls were aligned much like a chorus before a stage director. This was the shadowbox, and out beyond in the dim light Daisy could see the silhouetted faces of a score of men.

"Straighten up, girls!" shouted an imperious voice. The seven girls, one of whom was sniffling, jumped at the command.

"Well, do you recognize her?" came the same voice.

"I can't say—but that looks like her—only she had on a different dress," came in husky tones. Daisy squinted at the speaker, attired in overalls, a cap in his hand. He was looking hard at the girl next to her, and Daisy felt the girl shiver.

"What did she say to you when she stopped your truck?"

"She said—she said, 'Which way's Randolph street?'"

"Hey, you! Come on, say it—'Which way's Randolph street?'"

The girl murmured something and the command, staccato and sharp, came again.

"Which—which way's Randolph street?" the girl faltered.

"That's her—I recognize her voice!" exclaimed the man in overalls. The girl began to cry.

"Okay—take her out."

"No—no—no—" sobbed the girl.

"Take her out! Let the others go. All but Daisy Beaumont there—I want to talk to her."

The girls were led from the stage. Daisy stood defiant beneath the glaring lights.

"Now, Daisy, you were in Bedford, weren't you?" asked the officer, walking up to her.

"Yeah—what of it? I took a wrong rap—an' they let me go when they found I'd been framed—can't you leave a girl alone to earn an honest livin'?"

"Honest? You work for Belmonte, don't you?"

"Certainly I do—and I work. Plenty of girls work for worse guys than him—and I need the job."

"Well, I'm going to let you go this time—but there's certain things we want to know. You'll be better outside than in. I want you to keep your eyes open and report——"

"Stool?" asked Daisy contemptuously.

"No, just keep yourself out of trouble. It'll be better if you're friends with us—understand."

"Huh—I understand."

"Well, we'll let you go—but remember you've got a record—watch your step——"

"All right, mister, when do I leave?"

"You're free to go now—take her out, Ed."

Ed Fitzpatrick motioned to her. She jumped lightly from the platform. Ed took her by the arm and led her through the group of detectives. When they got to the street she stopped and said contemptuously:

"Well, you ain't nothin' like your brother—he's at least a square shooter if he is a copper."

"And you're a pretty classy looker, even if you are tied up with that mob," grinned Ed, tipping his hat. "Somehow I kind o' think—I'll be seein' you!"

But that's a bit unfair. Industry helped itself plenty—when we had it.

FISCAL REFLECTION

WASHINGTON — Predicting that another period of economic inflation would start next year, Virgil Jordon, New York economist, says a national council should be set up as a step in controlling such expansion.

Inflation's economic crime,
We like it.
It brings depression in due time,
We like it.
It takes from many, gives to few;
It leaves us feeling sick and blue;
But, after all, what can we do?
We like it.

An Unwarranted Fear

There Is No Evidence That Public Opinion Here Is Unfairly Inflamed Against Mayor Kline.

Mayor Kline and his former Director of Supplies, Bertram L. Succop, have asked for a change of venue for their trial on charges of malfeasance. They say they cannot get a fair trial in Allegheny County because public opinion is unfairly inflamed against them.

There is much evidence of a contrary character.

Mayor Kline has made several public addresses since his indictment and has invariably been warmly applauded.

One of his friends and supporters, William J. Soost, was elected to Council, and another, Senator James J. Coyne, who publicly declared the jury would acquit Mayor Kline without leaving the box, came close to being elected County Commissioner, receiving 137,904 votes in the primary, as against 144,090 for Col. C. C. McGovern, who was elected.

These things do not indicate that public feeling is unjustly inflamed against the Mayor.

Kline and Succop say the newspapers have conducted a vicious and unfair campaign against them, and were actuated in this by improper and unworthy motives.

The only motive that the Sun-Telegraph has had in publishing the news about Mayor Kline and his administration and in commenting upon it editorially has been to serve the public and to give Pittsburgh good government.

In what it has said the Sun-Telegraph has not knowingly swerved as much as a hair's breadth from the truth.

'Hourly Nursing'

It Is a New Kind of Service with Which the Public Should Be Better Acquainted.

We learn from the Mirror, a publication of the Fayette County Medical Society, that nurses are at a loss to understand why "hourly nursing" is not more popular. Perhaps the reason is that the public is not well enough acquainted with the matter.

"Hourly nursing" is simply a system of employing nurses by the hour instead of by the day. At the last convention of the State Nurses' Association the plan was approved as a way by which nursing service might be furnished persons unable to pay for the full time of a nurse.

Nurses employed on an hourly basis can be called in to give hypodermics, renew dressings, bathe the patient, administer treatment or render any of a number of other services that call for skill and training.

It is well to know there are nurses willing to do this part-time work.

A Significant Verdict

A Criminal Court Jury Bears Witness to the Unpopularity of Prohibition.

Frank Witte, of Cheswick, was placed on trial in Criminal Court as a bootlegger. State troopers testified they caught him in the act of delivering a can of whisky at a Springdale restaurant.

Witte did not deny the charge.

But the jury found him not guilty. Acquittal of Witte was a miscarriage of justice, the court declared, and summarily discharged nine of the jurors from further service.

The verdict is merely additional evidence of the unpopularity of prohibition, and of the belief of a considerable section of the public that it should not be enforced.

Good Work, Crafton!

The Other Boroughs Should Also Arrange for Impressive Celebration of the Washington Bicentennial.

The United States Bicentennial Commission praises Crafton's program for celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of George Washington's birth.

And well it may, for 27 civic, religious, fraternal, political, social and educational organizations have joined hands in impressive plans for the celebration. Patriotic commemorative exercises will be held 12 times during the year, and essay and oratorical contests conducted to further interest in Washington and his services to the nation.

Good work, Crafton! Every other borough and city should take a leaf from your book in respect to this important matter.

Julius Rosenwald, A Good American

Julius Rosenwald is dead. That news will bring sorrow to millions.

Mr. Rosenwald was a hard worker all of his life, never spared himself and burned up his strength at the early age of 66.

All of his energies, it may truly be said, were devoted to the welfare of his country. He worked hard and ceaselessly to build up a great business, thus giving employment to hundreds of factories, and hundreds of thousands of men, directly and indirectly.

As the money reached him it was distributed, largely, in ways beneficent.

Every good cause in America, regardless of religion or race, or origin, had his sympathetic ear.

He made millions because he was a man of the highest intelligence, a typical American business man.

He gave away millions and millions, and more millions.

Now that he is gone, the world, after the first shock, looks in wonder on such an example of ceaseless, spontaneous giving.

It is doubtful whether any American, in proportion to the amount of his wealth, ever gave as Mr. Rosenwald has done.

He helped the poor, contributed to education, was particularly generous in relieving the needs of his own people, thus setting a good example to those of every race and every religion.

But religion or race played no part in directing his giving.

All good causes appealed to him, particularly the cause of those that were downtrodden or looked down upon by their brothers more fortunate.

He made and built for Sears, Roebuck, as president and chief owner for many years, one of the highest business names in the United States.

He built for himself a name and a reputation infinitely higher and greater.

Only one word need be written on the tombstone of Julius Rosenwald—GENEROSITY.

The world, passing, will say, that must be the grave of Julius Rosenwald.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Thoughts while strolling: Everybody from Vienna is scientifically important somehow. C. B. Dillingham's derby sits like Queen Marie's bonnet. Francine Larrimore and Helen Morgan have the same tremolo in their voices. Ernest Glendenning suggests a painted China doll. The dash of the human herd.

Bing Crosby, a Tacoma, Wash., boy, who made good in the city. About time to revive the Brownie craze. James (Dinty) Moore suggests the movie version of a western Senator. Those bright little three-stool spaghetti caves. Owney Madden, gangster, is as robust as a fishing worm.

Wonder if anyone ever introduced Kate Douglas Wiggin to Clare Victor Dwiggins. Or Ona Munson to Ozzie Nelson. They say Alolph Ochs is a finished dancer. And Al Smith is champ among old fashioned waltzers. What does The Preventorium on Madison avenue prevent?

The newest monoclist—Richard Tauber, German tenor. The former Adele Blood and her daughter. Whatever became of Clara Bloodgood? The Ritz has had the same starters for 15 years. Hal Skelly is fattening up. Charwomen in black shawls hobbling back to their slums.

Corey Ford darts about like a robin. That starched crowd attending morning musicales. Foxhall Keene roaches his hair like an old fashioned barkeep. No American writer is touching Francis Brett Young these days. What became of Elizabeth Brice? I was in love with her and Della Fox the same year.

But next year, philanderer I am. I had a picture of Flora Zabelle under my pillow. Now mourning cigarettes in black paper. Helen Menken is even paler than Eva LeGallienne. And her sister, Grace Lytell, has longer eyelashes than Winnie Sheehan. The newest Peter Arno—W. Steig.

Will Hays' brother Hinkle. Hinkle Hays, Dingle Dong, la, la, le, la, la. Blame that outburst on Hoover, too. Everything else is. Ed Wynn's expression reminds me of the blank solemn face of a hall clock. Well, this time next winter we'll know the facts of capitalism, anyway.

Otis Skinner, although one of America's foremost Thespians, was never a howling success in New York. He has had fairly protracted engagements but none to compare with those of Maud Adams, John Drew, Richard Mansfield and others in his class. Yet no trouper is such a sure fire success in other cities. Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, St. Louis and lesser municipalities welcome him with fervor.

* * *

Two other actors whose talents are not so pronounced, have enormous drawing power outside the metropolis, but when they come to the Rialto they meet a comparative chill. I refer to Walker Whiteside and William Hodge. While Chic Sale is extremely popular in vaudeville and pictures, he has never scored to a marked degree in musical shows in New York. Yet on tour he is one of the bull's eye troupers. Even with mediocre support, so frequently given him, he always fills provincial theaters.

* * *

There is diversity as to who has the greatest boxoffice appeal on the legitimate stage. Many point to Katherine Cornell. And there are, of course, those who hail The Alfred Lunts as the new Royal Family of Broadway. The distinction probably goes to a Londoner—Noel Coward. Coward had the wisdom not to glut America with performances. He appears for a limited period and vanishes. It is a lesson many excellent performers never learn.

* * *

I am a staunch admirer of vaudeville. Sunday nights usually find me down front at the Palace. Yet I believe many superb legitimate actors hurt professional standing by long runs there. After all the Palace is a two dollar show and its stars become $2 performers. It has no effect on me but I know it does on thousands of others who have a sincere interest in the stage.

In sudden outbursts of song along deserted highways my lyrics are a string of la la las. La-laing on Forty-ninth street last night late a smartie of a truck driver yelled: "If you run out of las, sweetheart, I can loan you a swell set of deadle-dees."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

One job and 100 women applying for that job!

Single girls, alone in the world. Single girls with old folk dependent upon them. Childless widows. Widows with children. Wives with babies and sick or unemployed husbands. Wives whose husbands are working, but who want that job in order to improve the family living standard or buy luxuries for themselves. Women who want that job for food. Women who want that job for frills.

WHICH WOMAN SHOULD GET THAT JOB?

"The single girl," you'll say, "or perhaps the woman with the babies; but the woman who has other support—the selfish spender who uses her wages to buy luxury for herself—never!" Yet here comes Mrs. A. B. with the theory that SELFISH SPENDERS ARE A BLESSING TO THE COUNTRY.

It's a new angle to an old, sore subject; and it's plenty argument. Listen!

Dear Miss Robinson—

One hears so much criticism nowadays about married women workers, and women who work just to buy finer things for themselves or their homes, that you'd think they were criminals.

BUT WHAT DIFFERENCE DOES IT MAKE HOW A WOMAN SPENDS HER MONEY, AS LONG AS SHE KEEPS IT IN CIRCULATION AND HELPS KEEP BUSINESS GOING?

Suppose a woman does work for luxuries. When she buys those luxuries the owner of the factory, the man who works in the factory, the stockholders, the department store, the railroads, the sales people, the clerical forces all make a profit. The thing she buys may be silly or "unnecessary" but it does not seem so silly when we realize how many people depend upon its sale for their daily bread. When a woman like that takes a job, she gives jobs to dozens of others.

If people were permitted to buy only the necessities of life—if only those needing such bare necessities were given jobs—what a terrible country this would be. Can you imagine it? No automobiles, no domestic conveniences, no silk stockings or underwear, no beauty aids, no movies. Think of the number of people who would be out of work if we cut out luxuries!

I heard a man sneer at a woman because she went to work with a lot of make-up on. He said she ought to have her job taken away from her on account of that. But that very night I read an article about the beauty business: It said America uses SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY MILLION DOLLARS WORTH OF COSMETICS EVERY YEAR. Think of the thousands and thousands of factory workers, salesmen and beauty parlor operators who would be put out of work if women weren't allowed to buy make-up!

Compare the married woman worker who earns $30 a week and spends $15 for luxuries, and the married woman who stays at home and scrimps and buys only necessities, WHICH ONE PUTS MORE MEN TO WORK? WHICH ONE IS BETTER FOR BUSINESS?

Isn't our famous "American standard of living" based on luxury buying? And aren't our married women workers who take jobs, so they can buy more luxuries for themselves and their families and send their children through college, largely responsible for American prosperity? I think they are.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Why the Taxicab Clinch?

If woman had only one-quarter of man's optimism, she would be sitting right on top of the world. She would never suffer from nerves, depression or an inferiority complex.

* * *

In business, a man may sometimes be a little timid or doubtful. But never in matters of love. Or in his attitude toward women. Nothing but a bullet ever convinced a man that a woman actually didn't WANT him around, any more.

All of which brings us to the automatic "taxicab-clinch" from which so many girls suffer, and without which no modern man seems to think the evening complete. It is getting to be just an old Spanish nuisance!

* * *

No matter what she may say or do to discourage him, the average man just can't BELIEVE that a girl—any girl—isn't yearning to be "loved," embraced, kissed—mauled!

* * *

He can no more think of the combination of a girl and a taxicab, without adding a "petting party," than he can think of bitters without adding whisky. Or of ginger ale without thinking of gin. Or of lamb without thinking of mint sauce.

* * *

There it is, all mapped out in his mind. Man—girl—motor car—darkness—privacy. What, no kisses? Don't they go together? Of COURSE they do!

He may not particularly want to kiss the girl. It's just "the thing to DO." Like accepting the crackers passed with the tea—or the anchovy sandwiches passed with the cocktails.

* * *

Of course, women are tender, affectionate, clinging things—and they DO like to be loved. But if there is anything on earth that revolts and bores a normal girl to tears, it is being kissed or mauled by the wrong man. Or by a different man, every time she goes out.

* * *

You can't entirely blame the men for all this. Men take their cue from women; and they could never have started taxicab clinching, if they had not had plenty of feminine co-operation. But, it's high time that all this vulgar jazz-age cheapness were "out." And that a girl could enjoy an evening in a man's company without having her marcel wrecked and her lip-rouge smeared all over her face.

The House Tariff Plan Is Sound and Just

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The action of the President in sending a special message to Congress to urge speed on the administration measures dealing with the economic conditions was unexpected and surprising, in view of the extraordinary speed with which the House had acted before the recess. Of course Congress cannot be expected merely to accept, without consideration and possible amendment, everything the President proposes. That is not "the American way," nor the Constitutional way. But it is to be expected that Congress will move as rapidly as is reasonable.

Meanwhile, by consideration, the Democratic House has found it possible to cut almost $14,000,000 from the cost of government proposed by the President's budget. Assuming, as we have a right to do, that this is possible, it is fortunate for the taxpayers that instead of acting merely as a "yes, yes" body for the executive department the legislative branch took time to reach its own conclusions.

The fact that the Democratic House has seen fit to propose action on the tariff, which does not enter into the desires or plans of the President, may have been responsible for the sending of the message.

* * *

Tariff Barriers Must Give Way

The President appears to be almost alone among thoughtful Americans in assuming that the tariff barricades of the nation have nothing to do with the depression; and that the removal of these destructive restrictions on trade is not an essential part of any statesmanlike plan to relieve the economic situation. Happily the House does not share the President's view. Neither do the economists; nor the business men of vision and intelligence; nor the financiers.

The President appears determined to maintain the status quo; and that does not make for confidence in his leadership.

He has a plan for the relief of the railroads; and it is clear that their condition calls for relief. But it seems strange that the President cannot understand that one of the reasons the roads are in bad shape is that there has been an appalling decrease in freight; and that this decrease is measured to a very important extent by the decrease in foreign trade. The freight trains are no longer heavily laden with goods moving to and from the sea shore—because there are tariff barriers there.

The restoration of trade is the first essential to the restoration of prosperity and the tariff barriers must give way if there is to be a restoration of trade. It surely is absurd to imply that when the House gives attention to this phase of the economic situation it is turning away from relief measures.

* * *

The Democratic Measure Is Sensible and Sound

The plan proposed by Representative James W. Collier, with the approval of the Democrats' board of policy, reduces no rates of the prohibitive act which has caused so much of our trouble. That would make for delay and confusion; since such a measure, originating in the Democratic House, would encounter opposition in the Republican Senate and the President. The most encouraging feature of the proceedings in the House thus far is in the revelation that the leaders there are realists, not impractical theorists. The Democratic measure is sensible and sound to the core.

It calls upon the President to do something he has shown no disposition to do—to attempt the negotiation of reciprocal trade agreements with foreign governments that have adopted measures similar to ours in retaliation, looking to mutual concessions in the interest of the restoration of trade.

* * *

Provisions of the Proposed Measure

It would be sheer effrontery to say that this is partisan. Banks, economists, business men have all been urging this procedure. It is the only way anything can be accomplished under existing world conditions. The President, who refuses to take the initiative, would not dare to veto such a plan.

The Democratic measure also proposes the creation of a permanent "international economic conference" with duties rigidly confined to the consideration of tariff matters. This has become a necessity for the reasons just mentioned. The President would find some difficulty in justifying a veto of that plan.

The two other provisions of the proposed measure would probably encounter the hostility of the President, though neither of them are necessarily partisan in spirit or purpose. Both relate to the Tariff Commission. Both will meet the approval of the major part of the people.

Always On The Job

Under existing law applications can be made to the Tariff Commission for changes in the rate of taxation in the schedules. The theory is not bad, but it is necessarily bad in its operation. The selfish private interests that have long made a scandal of the tariff are always on the job—petitioning for increases in the tariff tax on the consumers. They are organized. They know exactly what they want. With expert aid, they prepare their cases for the commissioners. And that is the only side that is heard. The fact that the consumers MAY be heard is meaningless. They are unorganized; and do not appear. There is very little publicity about the application of selfish interests. The first the consumers know the commission has acted.

The Collier measure provides for the creation of a consumers' counsel—a representative of the consuming public which pays the taxes. He is to be on duty all the time, preparing the case for the people. To this the people certainly are entitled.

It would be interesting to know just what possible objection the President can urge against that provision.

The Republicans could not oppose it as partisan, for that would be a public proclamation that it is a fixed policy of their party to oppose the representation of the consumers in the fixing of rates the consumers have to pay.

* * *

Tariff Plan Ought to Be Adopted

The fourth provision transfers the power to increase or lower tariff rates under the flexibility clause from the President, who never was intended to have the power to tax, to the Congress, which the Constitution makes the sole taxing body. It merely proposes to get back to the original intent of the Tariff Commission—to make it an advisory body for the Congress, furnishing that body with information on which it can act with intelligence.

The power to tax—for that is what it amounts to—becomes a dangerous power in the hands of one man, no matter who he may be. For as John Marshall said, "the power to tax is the power to destroy." In the hands of a selfish and unscrupulous man it may become vicious; for by a scratch of a pen he may put millions into the coffers of a great corporation.

We make no charge or insinuation, but merely set forth this possibility; an unscrupulous President with this power can buy the political support of powerful interests and pay for it out of the pockets of the consuming public.

This tariff plan of the House is sound and will be popular and ought to be adopted with the approval of the President.
